Stage set for Carter nomination

NEW YORK (AP) — Jimmy Carter reaches a crucial milepost on his long, once lonely journey from Georgia toward the White House when tonight he receives the Democratic presidential nomination. Not until he has that prize in hand does Carter intend to name his running mate.

Carter began this day of fulfillment by meeting a series of groups anxious to have his ear and also worked on his acceptance speech.

The third session of the Democratic National Convention is to open at 8 p.m. EDT, and sometime before midnight, during the call of the roll of delegations, Carter's vote total will top the 1,505 needed for the nomination.

With that accomplished, the nominee will call the six senators on his list of potential running mates and notify them of his choice. Carter then intends to announce his choice publicly at a news conference on Thursday.

Considered at the top of that list were Sens. Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and John Glenn of Ohio.

Sometime before midnight, Carter's vote total will top the 1,505 needed for nomination.

Also in the running were Sens. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Frank Church of Idaho and Adlai E. Stevenson III of Illinois.

Carter's choice will be ratified by the convention Thursday night just before the former Georgia governor delivers his acceptance speech.

The convention approached its climax in an atmosphere of unity with party leaders and delegates determined to do nothing to upset Carter's careful plans to win the White House, held by Republicans for nearly eight years.

Among the meetings on Carter's schedule was one with Democratic governors. Gov. Reuben Askew of Florida, chairman of the group, said the purpose was "to try to help him in any way he feels he needs assistance rather than trying to lobby him on any particular candidate."

Delegates and party leaders are determined to do nothing to upset Carter's careful plans to win the White House.

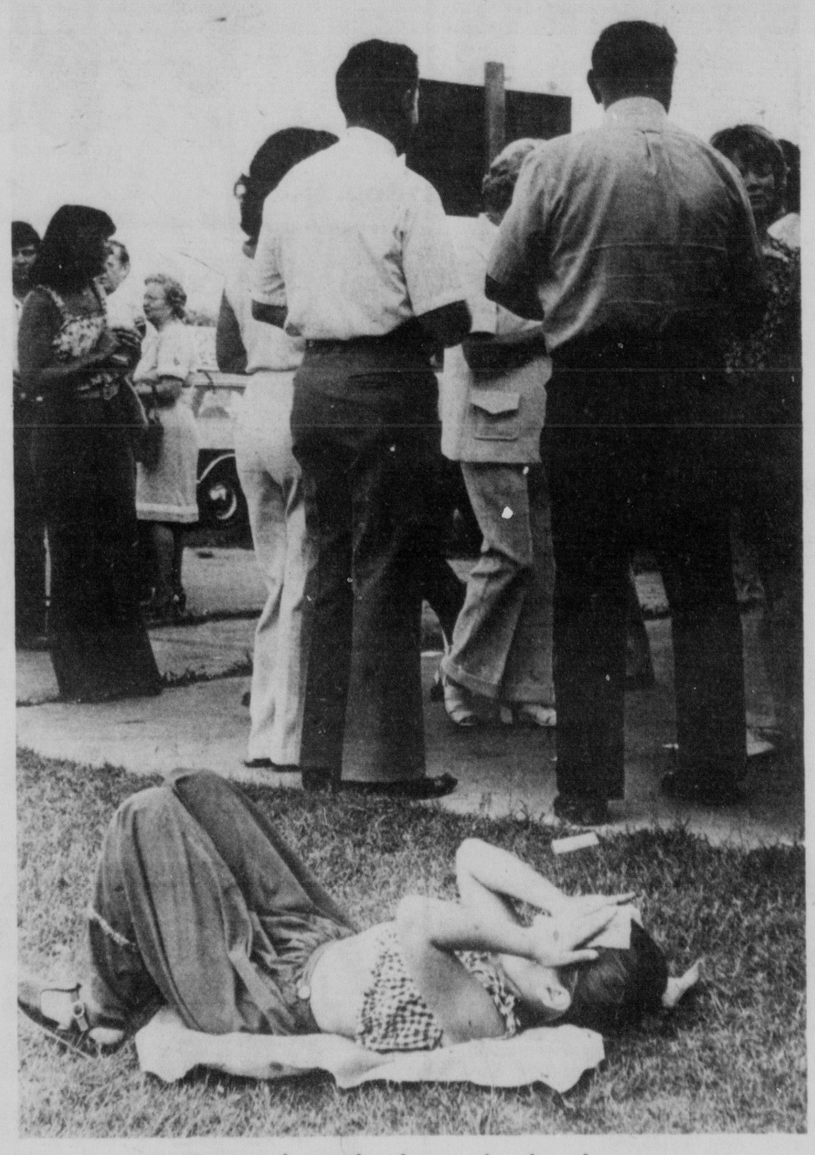

Carter also met with nine labor leaders for what an aide described as a "get acquainted session." After the meeting, a Carter spokesman said the union leaders urged Carter to choose Mondale as his running mate.

Carter is one of four candidates whose names will be placed before the convention tonight for the presidential nomination. The others are Rep. Morris Udall of Arizona, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., of California and Ellen McCormack of Long Island, N.Y.

Udall doggedly but unsuccessfully pursued the nomination through the long primary campaign. Brown entered late and defeated Carter in six states, but the Georgian had the nomination all but clinched before Brown got into the race. Mrs. McCormack campaigned on an antiabortion platform.

Rep. Peter W. Rodino of New Jersey, who presided over the hearings into the impeachment of Richard M. Nikxon two years ago, will deliver the nominating speech for Carter. Seconding speeches will be given by Margaret Costanza, vice mayor of Rochester, N.Y., and by Rep. Andrew Young of Georgia.

Former Special Watergate Prosecutor Archibald Cox will place Udall's name in nomination. Udall has said he would release his delegates before the balloting begins.

Bored with the whole thing

Carla McMullin, 10, daughter of Glenn McMullin, Republican candidate for sheriff, apparently got bored with all the campaigning and played with this napkin before the 22nd annual Pettis County Farm Bureau banquet Tuesday night at the Agriculture Building on the State Fairgrounds. More than 1,300 people attended the event, which took on the air of a political rally as candidates for local, state and national offices politicked away.

Hearnes confident, cites voter apathy

Former Gov. Warren Hearnes is counting on history to repeat itself this August.

In town Tuesday to attend the annual Farm Bureau picnic, Hearnes predicted, "We're going to win this thing the same way we did in 1964." That year he was the upstart secretary of state who was bucking party protocol by running against Lt. Gov. Hilary Bush in the Democratic primary. He bettered the predictions of most polls and won the primary and the election.

Hearnes said the difference between this election and the 1964 contest is the number of candidates. He predicts Rep. James Symington will be the closest also-ran with between 15,000 to 20,000 less votes than himself.

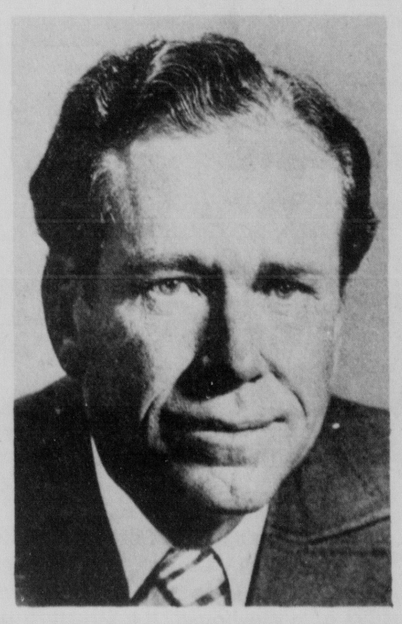

Commenting on differences between himself and other candidates, Hearnes said the differences have not been fully outlined. He was slow to blame the news media for this, however he said: "I've seen less interest by the media this year than I've seen in any other year since I've been in politics." He added that this seemed to reflect the general apathy of voters.

Hearnes said he is firmly against abortion and accused Symington and Rep. Jerry Litton of attempting to dodge the issue by saying each state should adopt its own policy. He said this approach would be "chaotic."

Cautioning that he would scrutinize each proposal offered, Hearnes maintained that he favors a stronger defense budget than either Symington or Litton.

"I don't believe the defense budget is any more sacred than HEW or anything else, but being a West Point man, I would probably be a little more defense oriented than anyone else," Hearnes explained.

Describing his view of national health insurance, Hearnes commented that "there are so many national health insurance plans that to say you're against it is like saying you're for sin and against motherhood." He said he favors legislation that would provide "protection against catastrophic illness."

He said much of the employment legislation introduced today is too strong a medicine for the problem. He said government needs to get out of competition with private industry in order for the employment picture to improve.

Hearnes said he is willing to debate his opponents, but favors a debate with one person at a time.

Asked if federal officials were still investigating his administration as governor, Hearnes said the matter was closed except that "they owe me $51.42."

Hearnes said he felt the long investigation, with no findings of wrong-doing by the Internal Revenue Service, had ended up helping him with the voters. "A lot of people think I'm clean," he said, and ad-

Tempers boil over abortion

NEW YORK (AP) — The division in the Missouri delegation over the abortion issue flared into open bitterness Tuesday at the Democratic National Convention.

Tempers boiled at a meeting of Missouri delegates committed to Jimmy Carter, and three of those delegates walked out for a time.

Pro-Life leaders in the delegation had some caustic comments for the majority of the Missourians who wouldn't support them in a losing bid to get the rules changed so the platform plank on abortion could be debated on the convention floor.

Missouri's Pro-Life group spearheaded the effort to get the abortion plank removed. They never really got it off the ground, mainly because the issue simply did not stir that many people in other delegations.

The Missourians claimed their warning should not go unheeded.

Higher school budget approved

Board lowers levy to $3.48

By MAX ERKILETIAN
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The Sedalia Board of Education approved a $5,871,789 budget for the 1976-77 school year at its regular monthly meeting Tuesday night. One change in the board's budget consideration dropped the district operating levy from $3.98 to $3.48. The new budget is $320,313 higher than the 1975-76 budget of $5,561,476.

The levy cut, designed to give local taxpayers a break, amounts to 50 cents on paper. However, because the last levy taxpayers paid was $3.83, the drop actually amounts to 35 cents.

Board member Dr. C.W. Monsees attributed this year's increase largely to higher maintenance costs and the average eight per cent salary increase granted district teachers for the coming school year.

"If you would look at our bills for electricity, for gas, for the telephone, you'd see in a hurry that inflation has had an effect here," he said. "I'd say our bills in this area have increased about 30 per cent."

Assistant Superintendent of Schools Earl Finley told The Democrat-Capital the board raised the levy last February to $3.98, the maximum amount approved by voters, in anticipation of legislation pending at that time that would have limited the board's ability to raise its levy. The legislation did not become law and the board felt free Tuesday to lower the levy.

The $3.48 figure is the lowest the local district can ask and still receive certain state funds. Finley said the state assesses a certain figure for each district below which that district's levy cannot go and remain eligible for "additional local tax effort funds."

In addition to the levy drop, the board departed from practices it had developed over the past three years by declining to allocate 100 per cent of its state aid funds into the teacher fund, which pays teacher salaries.

Under state law, 80 per cent of state aid funds must go into the teacher fund. The board voted to put 85 per cent of state aid funds, or $1,579,904, into the teacher fund. The remaining 15 per cent will go into the incidental fund. In previous years the board had put the entire allocation into the teacher fund.

A surplus of funds amounting to $144,889 was transfered out of the debt service fund, which pays most bonds and building costs. It was also put into the incidental fund.

According to Finley, the incidental fund "is the most flexible." Money can be transferred from it to other funds, where the opposite is not true, said Finley.

Finley, who termed the budget shuffling a "rearranged breakdown," said both the teacher and debt service funds would have enough funds to meet their needs for the coming school year. However, if the need should arise, funds could be transferred from the incidental fund

Birthright counseling explained

The Board of Education heard an explanation of a new counseling service for pregnant teenagers at its meeting Tuesday night.

Mrs. Doug Kneibert, president of Birthright, said the voluntary organization offers help to unmarried pregnant girls who "have a problem and nowhere to go."

Although this is one of the main focuses of Birthright, Mrs. Kneibert said the group also stands ready to advise married girls and women with problem pregnancies.

Birthright was set up nationally in 1968 specifically to offer alternatives to abortion. Mrs. Kneibert said the chapter would be in operation by mid-August and will have trained volunteers manning a 24-hour telephone service. Birthright will also offer free pregnancy tests, she said.

The organization is non-denominational, according to Mrs. Kneibert, and acts as a liaison to social service agencies that can provide additional help for those in need.

Mrs. Kneibert said Birthright formed partly in response to the problem of pregnant teenagers in the Sedalia school

Danforth critical of reform program

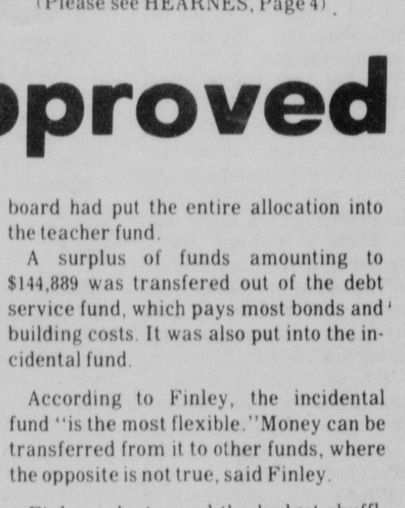

By RON JENNINGS
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

Attorney General John Danforth Wednesday derided the Democratic-controlled congress' reform program as merely "cosmetic changes....designed to distract voter attention until after the November elections."

At a Holiday Inn press conference, the Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate specifically cited the 15-member House commission appointed recently to suggest new safeguards on accounting and personnel procedures. This group, he noted, is not scheduled to issue a report until Dec. 31, 1977, "well after the present public furor has cooled."

Now, he said, "is the time for a complete and open review of the hiring of congressional staff, the buying of equipment and the setting of expenses and allowances." This effort, he continued, should include "a thorough Justice Department investigation of individual congressmen accused of illegal practices and a General Accounting Office study of oversight procedures for committee hiring and accounting."

In a related reform proposal, Danforth said he favors limiting the terms of representatives and senators to 12 years by passage of a constitutional amendment. "This would hopefully help these elected officials realize they have not been annointed to a permanent new status by virtue of their positions," he said. "With the special pool, special gym and all other special advantages and benefits, it has been very easy for many of our representatives and senators to feel they have been elevated to a new and

Perfume traps Japanese beetles

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government scientists have developed a synthetic sex perfume that apparently lures highly destructive Japanese beetles into traps more effectively than if the traps were baited by eager female beetles.

The Agriculture Department said the scent, which duplicate's the female beetle's natural substance called lactone, could mean that "the days of the Japanese beetle may be numbered."

"Traps baited with the synthesized attractant captured more males than traps baited with live virgin females in field tests conducted in North Carolina," the department said today.

The Japanese beetles, first detected in the United States in 1916 at a Riverton, N.J., nursery, cause about $25 million a year in damage and control costs, officials said. The beetles attack more than 275 kinds of flowers, fruits, vegetables and ornamentals.

"The shiny metallic-green pests are well-known to gardeners, homeowners, nurserymen and fruit growers in the northeast and north-central states," the department said. "Japanese beetle larvae, immature forms called grubs, live in the soil and feed upon the roots of grasses, causing severe damage or death to turf."

Scientists at USDA laboratories in Gainesville, Fla., and Wooster, Ohio, discovered the beetle sex lure, officials said.

"The newly discovered sex attractant will serve as an effective lure for detecting the beetle in freshly infested areas of the country," the department said. "It may also be used to directly control the pest by luring males to traps, to insecticides and to other killing or snaring devices."

In that manner, when enough attractant is distributed in an area it is possible that the natural mating of the insects "can be disrupted and no further generations" of beetles produced.

Costlier land

WASHINGTON (AP) — The value of farm land, which has doubled in the past five years, is expected to go up another 8 to 10 per cent this year, according to the Agriculture Department.

During the farm real estate year ended this March 1, the average price of farm land rose 14 per cent, from $354 per acre to $403 per acre, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Monday.

In predicting that land prices may rise another 8 to 10 per cent by March 1, 1977, the report said that "however, much depends upon U.S. crop production and export demand" in coming months.

"Corn Belt and northern plains states led the advance in land values," the report said. "The highest increases during the past year were in Iowa and Nebraska, both up 26 per cent. Land values in the far west, northeast and southeast increased the least."

The report said the value of the nation's farm real estate as of Feb. 1 was a record of $421 billion, up $51 billion during the year. The average value per farm rose 15 per cent to $165,000.

Corn, beans in Missouri need water

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday that recent hot, dry weather has provided good conditions for the wheat harvest but has left soybean and corn crops badly in need of rain.

About 88 per cent of the wheat has been harvested, the reporting service said.

Soil moisture declined in the state except in the western areas and statewide was 51 per cent short, 42 per cent adequate, and seven per cent surplus with 5.3 days suitable for field work, the service said.

Soybean planting was nearly complete with 10 per cent of the crops in bloom. About 89 per cent of the soybean crop were in poor condition, 36 per cent fair, 53 per cent good and two per cent in excellent condition.

About four per cent of the corn crop had reached silking stage with two per cent in poor condition, 20 per cent in fair condition, 62 per cent good and 16 per cent in excellent condition, the service said.

About one-third of the cotton in the Bootheel area was in the squaring stage last week. The condition of the cotton crop was fair to poor, with the majority reported as poor.

The second cutting of hay was 61 per cent complete with the harvesting of clover-timothy about 80 per cent complete. Pastures were reported 14 per cent in poor condition; 48 per cent fair, 35 per cent good and three per cent in excellent condition.

Candidate speaks of need for congressional reform moves

Noting that he has introduced several bills aimed at revamping the legislative process of the Missouri House of Representatives, Republican State Rep. Bob Johnson Tuesday said he would carry his reform concepts to Washington if elected to Congress this fall.

Johnson, Lee's Summit, is one of two Republican candidates seeking the nomination to succeed retiring U.S. Rep. William Randall.

One of his proposals for changing House procedures, he said, called for eliminating the Speaker's authority to assign House members to committees. Another would have established a special bipartisan group of representatives to decide within seven working days which committee a bill should be referred to. This also is currently a prerogative of the Speaker. Also, Johnson added, if the bill is not properly dealt with within the seven-day deadline, it would automatically be sent to the House as a whole for consideration.

Committee members, instead of being selected by the Speaker, would be named in party caucuses under his proposal, he explained. One final proposal, Johnson said, has been a bill to limit the terms of representatives to six terms (12 years) and senators to three terms (also 12 years). All these recommendations have died in committee, which, Johnson added, "didn't really suprise me."

State Rep. Bob Johnson

If elected to Congress, Johnson said he would favor limiting U. S representatives to six (12 years) and senators to two terms (again, 12 years).

Johnson, a former college economics instructor who was first elected to the Missouri House in 1972, described his congressional campaign theme as being "basically anti-Washington." This theme, he said, reflects his voting record as a state representative which, "tended to be in favor of less government control and also in favor of a free market economy."

Expanding on this, Johnson said he favored "a return to more governmental decisions made by local officials and a reduction in the role and scope of federal regulatory agencies."

Another Jefferson City practice which he pledged to keep in Washington is to practice economy in spending office operating funds. This year, Johnson noted, he returned about $1,500 to the state treasury in unspent office operation funds.

Finally, Johnson said that he would retain his custom of mailing questionnaires to constituents "and carefully study the responses I receive."

Pilot training, fuel discussed

The Sedalia Airport Board Tuesday night unanimously approved a request by David Routszong, owner of an aviation sales and service business here, to start a "Cessna Pilot Training Center" at the municipal airport.

Board chairman D.R. Landwehr said Routszong told him the center would be ready to begin training pilots in about two months. Although he is not yet sure what type of equipment the training center will have, Landwehr said it will provide complete instruction for flying small aircraft and will enable students to pass flight qualification exams administered by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Landwehr added that Routszong plans to employ a full-time flight instructor. Landwehr also noted that Routszong will attend a two-day training school later this month administered by Cessna to become familiar with its training procedures.

Commenting on the decision to allow establishment of the training center, Landwehr said, "He (Routszong) had a chance to put it in Marshall or Sedalia; if this will encourage more people to fly here, it'll help our airport." Landwehr said the training center would not affect the operation of current airport services.

Routszong currently operates his business at the airport on land leased from the city in the old Sedalia Jaycees building.

Following this decision, airport manager Jim Abbas said he felt there is not enough business in Sedalia for two flight training programs and then stated his intent to close his flight-training business.

The board then agreed to waive the requirement that Abbas, as part of his duties as airport manager, be required to conduct flight-training sessions. Abbas added that if the Routszong enterprise was discontinued later for any reason, he would resume the training program.

The board also decided to accept bids for supplying aviation and jet fuel at the airport after it was learned that airports in Jefferson City and other area communities are selling fuel around 8 cents a gallon cheaper. Representatives of these airports, in turn, are purchasing the fuel from wholesale suppliers about 9 or 10 cents a gallon cheaper.

The current retail price of aviation fuel at the local airport is 78 cents a gallon. The supplier for the airport is the Phillips 66 Petroleum Co. Landwehr said the airport board has not sought bids for fuel in the past because they were using Phillips 66 storage tanks and a mobile tank wagon.

"Because they were letting us use their equipment, we purchased the fuel from them," Landwehr explained. However, he continued, the airport is no longer dependent upon these Phillips 66 items because the board recently installed one 10,000-gallon aviation fuel tank and one 12,000-gallon jet fuel tank and will also have the services of a tank wagon.

"We won't be using Phillips 66 equipment, so we no longer feel obligated to purchase their fuel," Landwehr said. He added that board members are seeking bids from all fuel suppliers in the city and will consider them at the next board meeting.

In other business, the board approved a final budget for fiscal year 1976 of $44,436, Landwehr said. That budget has already been approved by the City Council finance committee, he said.

Landwehr also said three hangers which reverted back to the city last December have been rented to private individuals. The hangars were constructed with a leasing agreement that stipulated that after a designated period, they would become the property of the city.

back to either the teacher or debt service funds.

In other board action, Larry True, representing a summer camp for poor children, asked the board to furnish his program with a school bus to transport Sedalia youths taking part in the program to the camp in Warrensburg.

The program, which is federally funded, takes place on the Central Missouri State University campus.

True said about 35 Sedalia children are enrolled in the program. He said currently a private bus service is transporting the children at 18 cents a mile. The board delayed action on the request pending determination of the district's insurance coverage for such a program.

The board was informed that attempts would be made this fall to make the elementary grading system more uniform. The administration has issued guidelines for grading and explanations will be forwarded to parents at the beginning of the school year.

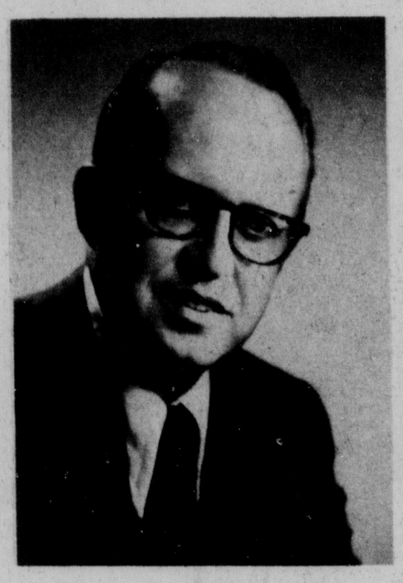

The board approved purchase of a Mini Gym Leaper, designed as an exercise unit to aid students in athletic programs, at a price of $700.

Funds were also approved to pay the board's $1,006 State School Board dues.

Mutual of Omaha Insurance Co. was given the right to distribute its insurance policy for students in the schools. Policy claims and payments will be handled by school administrators.

A proposal to hire additional lunch room supervisors was tabled. The board wants to investigate the possibility of using existing staff for lunch room supervision.

Property valued at over $500 taken from home

An estimated $564 in property was stolen within a 46-minute time span Tuesday night from the home of Jackie Staten, 217 East Cooper.

Miss Staten told police that she left her home about 11 p.m. Tuesday and returned at 11:46 p.m. to find an east window removed from her home and several items missing. Taken were a wrist watch, two rings, necklace, jewelry box and $10 in pennies.

In other police news, thieves burglarized Automotive Inc., 111 Dundee, sometime between 5:30 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday. A plate glass window was broken to gain entry and two wheels, valued at $97, were stolen.

Donald McMillian, 610 South Madison, reported the theft of Tuesday of two hubcaps valued at $50 from his car. He told police he parked his car in a parking lot at 227 West Jefferson at around 12:30 p.m. When he came back at around 5 p.m., the hubcaps were missing.

Man bound over to Circuit Court

David Wayne Morris, 19, 2221 West Second Street Terrace, was bound over to Circuit Court for trial on felony charges of selling a controlled substance, marijuana, following his preliminary hearing in Magistrate Court Tuesday afternoon.

The charge against Morris alleges he sold $45 worth of marijuana to an undercover Sedalia police drug agent on June 16. He was arrested June 25.

Morris remains in the county jail in lieu of $5,000 bond.

Resignation is submitted by Browder

Harry Browder

Harry Browder, 710 North Missouri, who began his career with the Sedalia school system in 1954 as a social studies teacher and basketball coach at Hubbard School, Tuesday night submitted his resignation to the school board due to poor health.

At the time of his resignation, Browder was director of guidance and counseling at Smith-Cotton High School and administrator of federal programs for the district. He also served as a vice-principal at Hubbard before coming to Smith-Cotton.

Quite active in community and school affairs, Browder last year received the "outstanding educator" award given annually by Central Missouri State University, Warrensburg. He has also served as second vice president of the Missouri State Teachers Association.

Commenting on Browder's resignation, assistant superintendent of schools Dr. Earl Finley said, "I have deep personal regrets at losing such a wonderful man and such a competent, complete administrator. The district, of course, is losing as well. Harry has contributed so much to this community and to the youth of Sedalia that it will be impossible to replace him with anyone of like-caliber."

different world, apart and away from their home states or districts. I feel that by limiting the number of years they can serve, we would help diminish this feeling."

"The spotlight should be on Congress" in this election year, Danforth said, "because only the Congress has the power to tax, to appropriate funds and to establish fiscal policy...yes, Congress is the overriding issue and I'm intentionally speaking in the singular. Everything else flows from this subject."

Of Congress' many regulatory responsibilities and powers, one of the most important at this time, Danforth said, involves "the sprawling bureaucracy." A change in governmental leaders without a corresponding consolidation and revamping of the bureaucracy "is like changing the flies over an elephant, but not bothering the animal itself."

Noting that his own Jefferson City office decided to drop a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration grant because its provisions became too unwieldy and restrictive, Danforth said he favored replacing categorical grants designed only for specifio projects with block grants that permitted local governmental units more leeway in determining projects to be funded.

"It all gets back to the matter of bureaucratic reform," he stated." And the thing to remember is that the President only oversees a congressionally-created bureaucracy. Congress is the key in this respect."

Danforth, who presented the state's case in the controversial Supreme Court hearing that resulted in the court overruling segments of the Missouri abortion law, said he was very disappointed by the court's decision. "However," he added, "I bounced right back and did not let it get the best of me."

Discussing his upcoming general election campaign, Danforth said simply "I honestly think I'm going to win, I really do." He criticized Democratic aspirants for the Senate who refused to honor former election spending restrictions, even though the restrictions were overruled by the Supreme Court earlier this year.

"I just don't believe the U.S. Senate should be bought," he explained. "A candidate who will spend any amount of money to get in office, I believe, will be more inclined to spend money if elected or to listen to special interest groups."

Danforth, whose election as attorney general in 1968 sparked a Republican resurgence in Jefferson City, also addressed the Sedalia Lions Club Wednesday and reiterated his views regarding congressinal reform and bureaucratic reductions.

Ironing lifts linoleum tiles

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the makers of women's slacks as it seems the creases should be sewn down the front as nearly all women I know prefer this and some cannot do the task themselves. I have bought cheap ones that have stitched creases and then some expensive ones that do not and then I have to pay someone to do it.

I find that by buying red billfolds, blue combs and green cosmetic cases I can more easily find what I am looking for in the large handbags I carry. Such items always fall to the bottom so as they wear out I always replace them with the same colors so they can be spotted quicker. — SANDRA.

DEAR POLLY — My answer is for A.B. whose no-wax kitchen floor has become sticky. We have a floor covering store and find this problem is usually caused by not rinsing thoroughly. We advise our customers to use a mild cleaner and rinse with CLEANER, clear water followed by a final rinse with one-fourth cup vinegar in a bucket of water. When not properly rinsed off, detergents tend to leave a sticky film that dirt adheres to and makes the floor look dull. Do not use harsh or abrasive cleaners. Most floor covering stores have cleaners recommended for these floors. A daily sweeping or vacuuming is also beneficial and will prolong the life of the floor. Mine is five years old and as I have followed this procedure from the start it still looks great. — M.M.

DEAR POLLY — When time is of the essence and I must get those windows washed no matter how cold it is outside, I use my hair dryer to blow away the steam that forms on the inside of the windows while I am polishing them.

If you are wondering where to store those onion bulbs you will be digging up this fall, fill old nylon stockings with them and hang in the garage or other dry area. — LUTIE.

DEAR POLLY — When installing glass in a window that has small quarter round molding, hold a small piece of carpet (about four inches square) against the glass to avoid hitting it when driving the small nails into the quarter round. This has worked great for us. — MRS.M.E.T.

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — Some of the twelve inch linoleum tiles on our kitchen floor are worn. I have new tiles to replace the worn ones but they are glued down so tightly I do not know how to remove them. Can anyone help me? — VALENTINE.

DEAR VALENTINE—I have had good luck loosening such tiles by laying a cloth or paper over the tiles and then ironing with a quite warm iron until the glue is softened and the tile will pull away. — POLLY.

It takes skill to achieve instant beauty

Good makeup job important, expert says

Beautifying strokes

George Masters, well known makeup artist, has a big bag of makeup tricks for women of all ages. (AP)

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures

It takes a lot of skill these days to achieve instant beauty with makeup, says George Masters, one of the best known and highest priced makeup artists in the business. He was explaining his fee of $150 for a 20-minute or so makeup.

"Girls do not have that look of innocence they had once ... many faces are spotted from use of the pill ... a lot of girls have acne ... the rebellious '60s group has wrinkled faster than most because they have worn no makeup, which can protect the skin ..." he explained.

In addition, so many over-40 women have pimples — at least one out of 5 of his clients — "they may be into some medication that is irritating their skin," he suggests.

His first task may be to condition the skin before he can get into the makeup aspect, said Masters, who was at a New York store doing "makeup leftovers" from a previous visit. He tours top stores in big cities, but he can never quite complete his appointments. And his clients include lots of young people who can, somehow, afford his services.

"Teen-agers? I teach them to cleanse their faces and to apply light waterbase fragrance-free makeup to protect their skins. I suggest muted eyeshadow — not the blue they all copy, a common mistake — and nothing bright. Eyeshadow should be more muted than the eye color."

They may part their "stringy hair" in the center, he says, as long as they forget the 100-strokes-a-day routine. It will break their hair.

At one time, Masters was touted as hairdresser to Marilyn Monroe. He also was acclaimed for his beautification of Lynda Byrd Johnson. But his clientele has always included office girls and sales girls as well as glamor girls. He recently went abroad to do Ann-Margret's makeup for a new movie.

His youthful appearance belies his long experience. A runaway, he began his career in cosmetics as a stockboy and sometimes hairdresser to a well-known cosmetics queen when he was a teen-ager.

For women in their late 20s and 30s he provides a lot of coverup for "their spots, undereye circles and the like" and he tries to teach them proper use of makeup.

"Their idea of glamor is bright red lipstick but they come off tough and men, anyway, have always hated lipstick. They also hate the taste of perfume. Women must learn to use scents on their hair or clothes instead of their skin."

At 30 a lot of women are brainwashed into thinking they have entered "some kind of dry skin age" and they slather themselves with cream and moisturizers hoping to eradicate little wrinkles, he points out.

"No cream can help wrinkles. Anything that can be tissued off cannot help. Water is best for the skin. An atomizer of water (he uses mineral water) used as a skin spray is the best treatment. A moisturizer might be good only to hold the water on your skin."

Masters likes the little scrubbing buffs and the slightly abrasive mitts that are available now for cleansing away dead skin.

His makeup advice for older women includes these pointers:

"Never put rouge high on the face — it will accentuate eye wrinkles. Keep it on the fatty part of the cheek. Too bright lipstick is aging. Avoid tight hairdos — men like loose hair. A 45-year-old woman looks younger with longish hair, not necessarily down to her shoulders, but just so it moves. I hate long gray hair, though."

"If skin is sallow use a water base makeup, not a cream base. Cream base can be used on the side of the face and neck and under the eyes. A little loose powder can be used but avoid pressed powder. If you've had a facelift don't rub your skin for at least a year — it takes that long for the skin to properly attach to the muscle."

Loneliness is biggest burden for widower

NEW YORK (AP) — "Your wife has been dead a month and you look at yourself in the mirror, and you say, 'Oh my God, what am I going to do?'"

Steve Karmen asked himself that question two years ago. And what he did was come very close to falling apart.

He was 37 when his wife died of cancer, leaving him with three daughters.

"People would say, 'How are you doing,' and I'd say, 'fine, fine,' but I wasn't doing fine at all. I was having a rough time — a very rough time."

He was, and is, a successful advertising writer with his own firm — Steve Karmen Productions, Inc., so money was no problem. He was able to hire housekeepers to maintain a household for his daughters — who range in age from 10 to 13.

But loneliness — bone-deep, aching loneliness — was a problem.

"Right after my wife died I went to work on a beer spot, a tough one. I couldn't get it. I tried to call the guy with the beer firm to tell him I couldn't do it — but he wasn't in, so I kept trying.

"It took me eight hours to do a two-hour job, but I finally got it done."

He has made the adjustment to being alone slowly and painfully.

"We knew she was dying and we discussed it many times. But you tend not to be practical. If you're practical, it seems uncaring, I guess, so you're not.

"If we had been practical the kids and I would have gone in to some kind of therapy to prepare for the future, but we didn't," he says.

Karmen is a tall, lean man who looks younger — with his reddish hair awry in a mod Afro style — than his 39 years. His natural style is exuberance, but he is only now beginning to feel exuberant again, he says.

"To be singled after living with someone for six or eight or ten years is indescribable — you're thrust suddenly into a world that's not your world," he says. "I hit bottom and now I'm on my way up again."

He calls it "Re-Connecting," because "that's what you have to do when you're suddenly singled. I want to tell people who are alone because of death or divorce that there's hope.

"No one told me that, and I needed to hear it."

Traffic record worsens

Four fatalities during June caused Pettis County's 1976 traffic record to take on a grim look when compared to the first six months of last year, according to Highway Patrol reports.

At the end of June this year, the county had recorded 133 accidents resulting in five fatalities and injuries for 57 other persons. Those figures compare to 118 accidents, one fatality and injuries to 52 persons during the first six months of 1975.

The month of June alone reflected the trend, with the number of accidents, fatalities and injuries higher than during June, 1975.

The Patrol's statistics for area counties for the first six months of this year follow:

Benton County — 99 accidents, 4 fatalities, 47 injured.
Henry County — 104 accidents, 3 fatalities, 53 injured.
Johnson County — 216 accidents, 2 fatalities, 85 injured.
Lafayette County — 189 accidents, 6 fatalities, 100 injured.
Saline County — 103 accidents, 2 fatalities, 52 injured.
Cooper County — 102 accidents, 1 fatality, 46 injured.
Moniteau County — 58 accidents, 5 fatalities, 33 injured.
Morgan County — 107 accidents, 4 fatalities, 85 injured.

Survey says meat prices were mixed

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — While farm prices for cattle and pigs continued to slide this week, retail prices for meat were mixed, according to the weekly market-basket survey by the Missouri Farm Bureau.

The check of average prices in 50 retail stores across the state showed the change from prices last week ranging widely, both up and down.

Beef prices showed the sharpest variations with arm roast falling 13 cents a pound to $1.04 while sirloin steak rose 11 cents a pound to $1.96.

Round steak was down nine cents a pound to $1.49, but that was offset by T-bone steak, which rose seven cents to $2.19 a pound.

Blade roast was seven cents lower at 81 cents a pound while ground beef was two cents higher at 78 cents a pound. Rib steak remained steady at $1.65 a pound.

Ham varied depending on the cut with a shank portion down four cents to $1.01 a pound and a butt portion up four cents to $1.13 a pound.

Pork blade roast was six cents higher at $1.29 a pound while center cut chops at $1.88 a pound and pork steak at $1.32 a pound remained steady.

Whole fryer chickens were steady at 53 cents a pound while cut up parts rose a penny to 61 cents a pound.

A dozen grade A eggs were slightly higher with extra large up a penny to 80 cents, large up a penny to 76 cents and medium steady at 67 cents.

A 1½-pound loaf of bread was four cents higher at 66 cents and 10 pounds of red potatoes continued dropping in price, falling another nickle this week to $1.46.

Three R's making a comeback

CINCINNATI (AP) — The old team of "reading, writing, and 'rithmetic" are making a comeback these days with their old partner, the McGuffey Eclectic Reader.

The school standard textbook maintained as its philosophy during nearly a century of continuous use from 1836 to about the 1920s a strong belief in the three Rs, strict discipline, strong moral values and love of God, country and family.

"We've gone from printing 500 copies five years ago to 10,000 in 1976. We ran out of our last printing three months ago," said Bob Baird, publicity director for Van Nostrand Neinhold Co., division of Liton Education, Publishing of Florence, Ky.

Baird said the enthusiasm for McGuffey readers comes from parental dissatisfaction with today's public education.

"When 30 per cent of our kids who graduate from high school can't even fill out a simple application for a job and 50 per cent of our incoming college freshmen need remedial reading classes, it's time to rethink our entire elementary educational processes," Baird said.

"The McGuffeys have never been out of print in 140 years. And we may see in the 1970s, with the cry of back-to-basics in education and the upsurge of orders for the readers, the publishing phenomenon of the decade."

Stanley Lindberg, a professor at Ohio University who recently completed "The Annotated McGuffey," said his publisher found 42 states had orders in for the readers, and they claim the list is growing.

"Eighty per cent of all Americans used the McGuffey Reader for about 80 years in this country," Lindberg said. "I am tremendously impressed with them historically because they had a massive impact on shaping our consciousness."

"Most classes starting in 1836 when the readers first came out were held in one-room schoolhouses with children from six to the late teens, under a single teacher," Lindberg said.

One criticism against the McGuffey's use today is that it exemplifies the White-Anglo Saxon-Protestant image of middle-class America. Lindberg said that the books merely reflect the times in which they were written.

"The moral values most heavily included by the readers — honesty, industry, courage, kindness, courtesy and obedience — are values whose absence in today's society many social critics lament," he said.

Business news

The local Pittsburgh Corning plant will hold a seminar Thursday to familiarize Missouri officials with the firm's building products, the company announced Tuesday.

Discussion of insulation materials, sound absorbing products, glass blocks and a tour of the local plant will be part of the seminar. Expected to attend will be three persons from the State Office of Administration, Division of Design and Construction; five from the office of the Adjutant General; and 14 from the University of Missouri.

Leading the seminar will be Byrl Stout, manager of the local plant; C. W. Sisler, roofing consultant, Carl Ohm, business manager for architectural products, Jack Lewis, sales representative from St. Louis; and Bill Lahme, a Kansas City sales representative for the company.

Dr. Robert J. Snowe, 1718 South Ingram, was among 286 physicians recently elected to fellowship in the American Academy of Pediatrics at a meeting of the AAP executive board in Evanston, Ill. The academy, a Pan-American association of physicians certified in the care of infants, children and adolescents, now has approximately 18,000 members.

Defending two Angolan mercenaries first case for young St. Louis attorney

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Through a roundabout series of events, a young St. Louis attorney argued his first case in a courtroom thousands of miles from home on behalf of two clients who faced a possible firing squad.

Bill Wilson, 28, was one of two attorneys who defended a pair of American mercenaries in Angola last month after they were captured by Cuban-augmented troops during that country's civil war.

One of the mercenaries, Daniel Gearhart, was executed last Saturday while the other man, Gary Acker, was sentenced to 16 years in prison.

Wilson, who graduated from law school last December and passed his Missouri Bar examination May 1, 10 days before he left for Angola, contends neither received a fair trial.

The five-man multiracial tribunal "didn't observe the basic safeguards provided in their own law," Wilson said Tuesday, "The sentences were politically motivated with no relation to anything that happened during the trial."

Wilson was hired along with a more seasoned attorney, Robert Cesner Jr., of Columbus, Ohio, by Acker's father who borrowed $5,000 to pay their expenses to Angola.

When they arrived in Luanda, Angola's capital, the two attorneys also agreed to handle the case of Gearhart, 34, of Kensington, Md. The third American also facing trial, Gus Grillo, refused their services. He later was sentenced to 30 years.

Bill Wilson

All three Americans were captured in February when their forces were surprised and overwhelmed by 2,000 Cuban troops.

At the time, Wilson recalled, he had just graduated from American University's College of Law in Washington, D.C., and was preparing for the bar examinations.

Wilson said he decided to go to Angola after the family of George Bacon, who was missing there, asked Wilson to investigate whether he was alive.

But before leaving, Wilson said he learned of the upcoming mercenaries' trial "and members of Acker's family who knew George Bacon's family and friends asked me to help them find a competent lawyer to handle the case."

Meanwhile Acker's father made contact with Cesner who in turn learned that Wilson was going to Angola and invited the young attorney to join him. Wilson said he decided to go at the last moment, taking with him only "a suit, two t-shirts, blue jeans and a jacket."

Wilson, a native of Newton, Kan., indicated he was not surprised by the stiff sentences.

When he left Angola June 29 the day after the sentences were pronounced, "I was very concerned for his (Gearhart's) life," Wilson said. "I actually felt it would take quite a bit to change their minds. I was very encouraged when (Angolan President) Neto said he would wait for world reaction. And as that reaction came in, I became more optimistic."

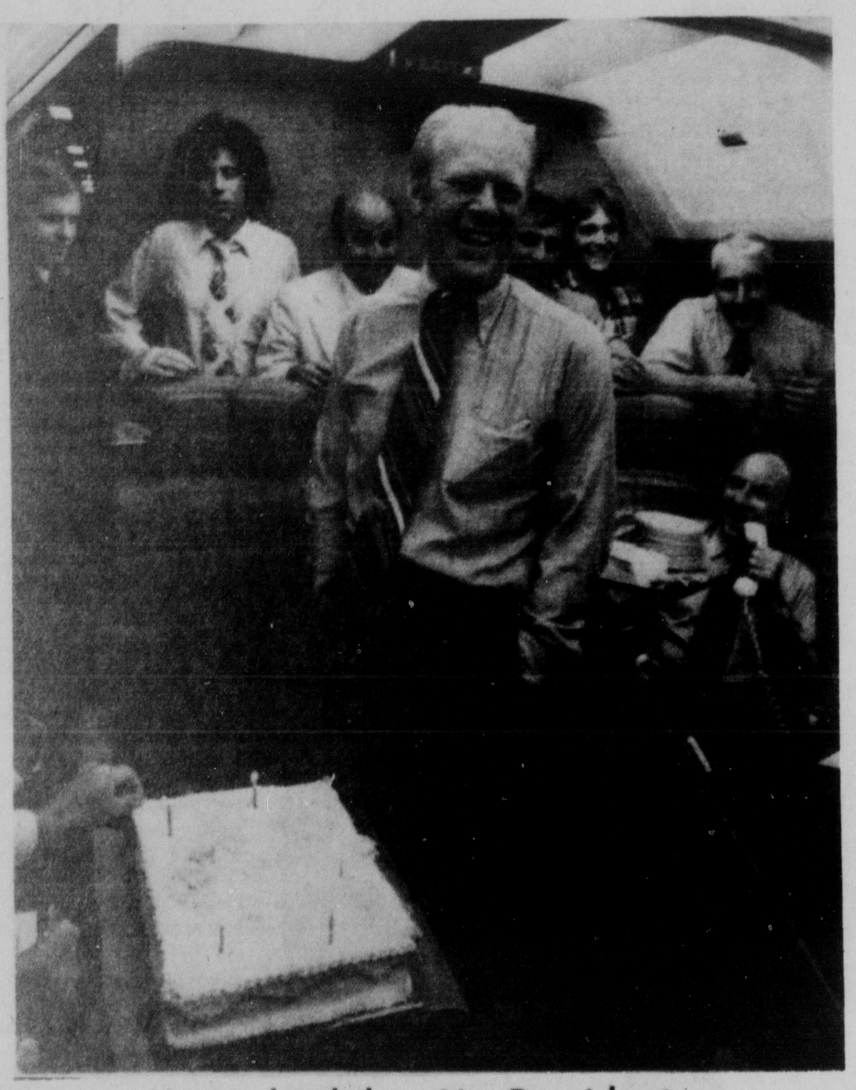

Wilson returned to Washington where he informed Mrs. Gearhart of what had transpired.

It was while Wilson was there that he learned of the executions of Gearhart and three British mercenaries in a phone call to a man who had assisted him during his stay in Angola.

"When I asked for visas, he said, 'Don't you know?' I said no. He said, 'It's already done.'"

Happy birthday, Mr. President

President Ford jokes with reporters and staff members aboard his presidential jet Tuesday night as a staff member lights the candles on a birthday cake. Ford was enroute back to Washington after attending the All-Star baseball game in Philadelphia. Inscribed on the cake was: "Give 'em Hell Jerry." Ford turned 64 Wednesday. (AP Wirephoto)

Birthday cake urges Ford, now 64, to 'Give 'em Hell'

WASHINGTON (AP) — He began his 64th year Wednesday as an underdog, slicing a birthday cake that urged him to "Give 'em Hell, Jerry."

The birthday boy is Gerald Ford. The unnamed "'em" mentioned on the cake, could be Ronald Reagan or Jimmy Carter or both.

President Ford was to take his semi-annual physical Wednesday, with electrocardiogram and standard lab tests by his personal physician, Rear Adm. William Lukash and that crimped an early birthday celebration.

Ford was the pre-game star at Tuesday night's baseball All-Star game and the celebration of his birthday began on the flight home from Philadelphia. Ford's staff brought out a birthday cake with five candles and the legend suggesting the presidential campaign of Harry Truman, an incumbent underdog who won.

Ford, confronted with the birthday cake, was reminded that he should not be eating prior to a physical exam. Turning to Lukash, Ford asked, "Couldn't it be postponed for 24 hours?" Lukash firmly shook his head in the negative.

So Ford cut the cake and passed pieces out to people on the plane. He did not eat a slice himself.

As the Democratic convention ground on in New York Tuesday night, Ford tossed out the first pitch at the All-Star game — twice, first with his left hand, then his right.

Ford strode onto the diamond, arms around managers Sparky Anderson of the National League and Darrell Johnson of the American League as a band played "Hail to the Chief."

Red, white and blue balloons by the hundreds were released from beyond the centerfield wall. Fireworks lit the sky and water fountains sprayed into the air over a replica of Independence Hall.

Before the game, the President visited both dressing rooms, autographed baseballs and jawboned with Mark "The Bird" Fidrych of the Detroit Tigers. Fidrych, starting pitcher for the American League, handed the President a ball and Ford said: "I hope he throws better than I do."

"Oh, I'm sure I will," Fidrych replied. He was the losing pitcher as the National League prevailed, 7-1.

Fidrych asked Ford's son, Jack, who accompanied the President to the game, about tennis star Chris Evert, whom Jack dated last winter.

"If you're interested, I'll set you up," Jack told him.

Man, 68, drowns at Lake of Ozarks

CAMDENTON, Mo. (AP) — Robert R. Dinwiddie, 68, of Columbia drowned in Jennings Bay in the Lake of the Ozarks, the Missouri Division of Water Safety reported.

Officials said family members reported Dinwiddie had been missing for some time. They speculated he fell from a dock or was in the water and tired.

The body was recovered about an hour after he was reported missing Tuesday.

Therapy for Mrs. Nixon

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Pat Nixon has begun physical therapy as she continues recovery from a stroke suffered last week.

Workers at Long Beach Memorial Hospital converted a lounge area adjacent to Mrs. Nixon's sixth floor room into a therapy area Tuesday. A hospital spokesman said this was done to avoid disruption of care for other patients in the rehabilitation center.

The former first lady's treatments consist primarily of exercises to rebuild muscle strength and short walks once or twice daily.

Dr. John Lungren, the Nixon family physician, said Mrs. Nixon is still listed in serious condition "because of the nature of the stroke." But he added that she was "much improved."

Lungren said Mrs. Nixon's speech has improved and her blood pressure is under control. The partial paralysis she suffered on her left side should be cleared up in a few months, he said.

Doctors said she should be released from the hospital in a week to 10 days.

Democrats cheer HHH, McGovern, Jackie, Wallace

All smiles

(AP Wirephotos)

NEW YORK (AP) — Hubert Horatio Humphrey, who has wanted to be president since the Articles of Confederation, maintained a stiff upper lip although the lower one may have suffered a slight quiver.

His reward was the longest, loudest ovation of Tuesday night's session of the Democratic National Convention, from a party that once more had passed him by.

By now the old warrior must be weary of trying not to be a sore loser. He tried four times to get his party's nomination for president and got it but once, in the worst of times, at the worst of conventions.

"I have good news for you tonight: we will have a Democrat in the White House Jan. 20," shouted the man who won't be that Democrat, and the crowd shouted back its approval.

"They say go slow, not now, no, no, veto. We've had enough of that defeatism.... If Ameica ceases to be good, America ceases to be great."

At the end, Muriel Humphrey took the hand of her twinkling husband and led him off the platform and he was gone, reluctant but smiling, a vivid memory in a baby blue suit.

He came and he went in a long procession of the party's familiar faces and last hurrahs, the former heroes and the forgiven villains, the widows, the passing symbols of profound change.

The delegates also cheered George McGovern in apparent forgiveness for the disaster four years ago. He issued a strenuous call for the defeat of those other fellows and then he, too, was gone, with less than 24 hours to wear a title nobody remembered, titular head of the Democratic party.

Ed Muskie appeared, attempted a casualness, tried a few jokes and then, with great effort, sounded the bugle for a cavalry charge that fell somewhat short of Light Brigade. In oratory, John Glenn and Muskie, two out of the three men believed to be Jimmy Carter's top choices for vice president, have now failed to light up the sky.

The chairman introduced a "very special person, for whom all Democrats have a special affection," and there she was, rising demurely from the VIP box, waving and smiling in her tentative way, Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis. The convention came to its feet, turned to its right and cheered.

George Wallace's appearance Tuesday night was framed in irony. He was preceded on the platform by the black mayor of Detroit, in whose office there now works one Rosa Parks. It was Rosa Parks, the Alabama seamstress, who began the Montgomery bus boycott, which ignited the civil rights movement in the South and the emergence of Martin Luther King.

Tuesday night, they cheered George Corley Wallace, who once stood in the school house door and now sat in a wheel chair, a gaunt face behind the microphones.

"Some of you need to laugh at me," he said, "but many of you are now saying the same thing: those bureaucrats in Washington ought to have their briefcases thrown into the Potomac."

Unseen hands pulled back George Wallace's wheel chair and he sank from the view of delegates. On the way out, he shook hands heartily with Coretta King, the widow of the civil rights leader. Nobody could remember whether her husband was ever invited to address a Democratic convention. She did Tuesday night, to a loud ovation, as "We Shall Overcome" swept the hall.

There were cheers, too, for Lynda Bird Johnson Robb, whose father has scarcely been mentioned in the last two Democratic conventions.

And also for Richard Daley, the Lord Mayor of Chicago, who couldn't get a seat in the convention four years ago, in whose city Hubert Humphrey's one real chance was flattened four years before that.

AFL-CIO ready to back Carter

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO, which sat out the 1972 presidential campaign, is preparing an endorsement of Jimmy Carter and plans to marshal its huge political force immediately after the Democratic National Convention.

The AFL-CIO Executive Council may endorse Carter next Monday, United Steel Workers President I. W. Abel said Tuesday night.

One AFL-CIO source said state and local federation units will make contact with Carter's campaign staff as soon as the convention ends this week to begin an effort that will focus initially on campaign strategy and the beginning of a nationwide voter registration drive.

Even if the official AFL-CIO endorsement is delayed until after the Republican convention in August, as favored by some union officials, federation political workers will start their Carter efforts this week.

"We're going all out," an AFL-CIO staff official said Tuesday. "It's going to be an efficient, clean political operation without, I doubt, much emotion. Of course, if (former California Gov. Ronald) Reagan is on the Republican ticket, it'll be a holy crusade."

Meany's absence from the Democratic convention this week was interpreted by some political observers as a lack of enthusiasm for Carter. But Meany aides said personal reasons kept him home.

The question has never been whether the AFL-CIO would endorse Carter, but how enthusiastic its endorsement would be.

If the federation is four-square behind Carter, it could call on an army of political workers from among 14-million unionists. That alone would represent millions of dollars worth of support for the candidate.

When they met June 30, Carter asked Meany for an endorsement after his nomination, which will come tonight. Abel, a delegate who said he'll vote for Carter on tonight's first ballot at the Democratic convention, said it was for the Executive Council, rather than Meany personally, to give endorsements.

A council endorsement Monday would be forwarded to a special meeting Aug. 31 of the presidents of all 110 affiliated AFL-CIO unions.

Witness re-enacts scuffle as Harris testimony begins

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A government witness saluted the defense with a clenched fist, then re-enacted a struggle by sitting on a prosecuting attorney during an eventful first day of testimony at the trial of William and Emily Harris.

Anthony Shepard, a clerk at a sporting goods store, staged the re-enactment — with the help of Deputy Dist. Atty. Richard Harbinger — after an alternate juror expressed confusion about Shepard's alleged scuffle with Harris.

Earlier, the owner of the store, Carroll Huett, testified that the struggle ended when a pale woman wearing sunglasses and an Afro hairdo opened fire on the store. Patricia Hearst has acknowledged she did the shooting.

The Harrises are charged with kidnaping, assault and robbery in an episode that began when Shepard thought he saw Harris shoplifting.

Miss Hearst faces charges in the same case, but is undergoing psychiatric examination in connection with her earlier conviction for bank robbery.

Shepard, who had testified for the government at Miss Hearst's trial in San Francisco and is a key witness against the Harrises, startled the courtroom by raising a clenched fist salute to Harris as he took the stand.

Chief defense attorney Leonard Weinglas said outside court that this surprised the defense because Shepard "has refused to speak to us."

Shepard, a police science student, said, "I noticed Mr. Harris walking suspiciously around the store.... I saw him shoving something down the right sleeve of his shirt. At first, I thought it was socks."

He said that when the Harrises paid $30 for heavy clothes — but not the socks — "I followed them out and I proceeded to ask him to come back in the store." A scuffle began, with Mrs. Harris and several store employes joining in.

Shepard said he jumped onto Harris and managed to slap one handcuff on him before Miss Hearst started firing.

When the juror asked for a better explanation, Superior Court Judge Mark Brandler permitted the re-enactment in the heavily-guarded, bullet-proof courtroom.

As judge and jurors stood to watch, Harbinger sprawled on the floor and Shepard straddled him.

Huett, who had joined the melee, described the scene on the busy Inglewood street.

Elizabeth, Philip get warm welcome

HALIFAX, Canada (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip are getting warm welcomes as they begin a 12-day tour of Canada in the Atlantic province of Nova Scotia.

They arrived here Tuesday aboard the royal yacht Britannia, which went through some heavy weather on the voyage.

Nova Scotia's Premier Gerald Regan told the queen he was sorry she had a stormy night at sea. He said the queen replied, "It wasn't really a rough trip for me, but it certainly was for the captain."

Litton outspends rest of primary opponents

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Congressman Jerry Litton, who said he needed to spend large sums of money to gain voter recognition in his Senate campaign, has shelled out more money than his three major primary opponents combined.

More than half a million dollars, $543,476 to be exact, has been spent so far this year by Missourians for Litton, according to campaign spending reports filed with the secretary of state's office here Tuesday.

Because a U.S. Supreme Court decision overturned some portions of the federal campaign law in February, Litton is legally able to spend as much as he wants in his campaign, and he has said he needs to expend large amounts for advertising statewide to achieve the voter recognition of his major opponents, former Gov. Warren Hearnes and fellow Congressman James Symington.

All three men and Kansas City Mayor Charles Wheeler are seeking the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination to succeed Symington's father, Sen. Stuart Symington, who is retiring.

Most of the money spent by Litton so far, $431,384, came during the three-month reporting period ending June 30, which was included in the campaign spending reports.

Under the spending limitations of the law before the Supreme Court ruled them unconstitutional, the Chillicothe Democrat would have had to limit himself to $316,416 in the primary, and if he won that race, $606,464 in the November general election.

More than half of his expenditures, $245,000, was made to a South Carolina public relations firm for campaign advertising.

Most of the money coming into Litton's campaign chest is in the form of small donations, going from the $25 variety up to $500. He received two bank loans during the period totaling $171,000 and contributed $100,000 of his own million dollar fortune to his campaign.

Symington's supporters spent $172,926 during the period, bringing his total for the campaign year to $242,784.

The committee supporting Hearnes' bid for the nomination reported spending $147,691 during the previous three months, giving him a year's expenditure total of $193,452.

Wheeler's committee reported spending $20,935, nearly all of it during the previous quarter.

The contributors to Symington's campaign read like a "Who's Who" in St. Louis business. Among those chipping in the maximum $1,000 individual contribution were 7-Up Board Chairman Ben H. Wells, Mars Oil Co. President Meyer Kopolow, Krey Packing Co. Vice President John Krey Stephens, Anheuser Busch Board Chairman August A. Busch Jr., and May Department Store Board Chairman Stanley Goodman.

The St. Louis County congressman has also chipped in a sizeable amount of his personal funds—$72,000—towards his own campaign.

Among the expenditures listed by Symington's committee was a $5,000 contribution to Citizens for Freedom Inc., a Kansas City political club which has endorsed the 2nd District congressman's candidacy. Symington said Tuesday that the endorsement had nothing to do with the contribution, which he said would be used to help "get out the vote" during the election.

He said the endorsement was agreed upon before the contribution was given and was "not a condition of the endorsement."

According to the report, another political club, United Democrats for Progress Campaign Fund, was given $1,250, and nine St. Louis wards received a total of $8,664.

The campaign spending reports are copies of those filed in Washington, under the federal election law. All candidates for federal offices are required to file the reports and send copies to the state's election office—in Missouri's case, the secretary of state.

The four Democrats will face off in the Aug. 3 primary, with the winner to meet Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth, the likely Republican nominee, in the November general election.

Danforth's campaign report showed that he received a total of $335,529 altogether and spent $159,119 of it. He has pledged to keep within the spending limits of the old campaign laws, even though they've been invalidated by the Supreme Court.

That means he's limited to spending no more than $316,416 in the primary and $606,464 in the general election.

One dead, 30 injured after trains collide

NEW CANAAN, Conn. (AP) — One passenger was killed and 30 others injured in the collision of two commuter trains about 50 yards from the station here.

The four-car train that left Grand Central Station in New York at 5:27 p.m. Tuesday for New Canaan, about an hour's run.

As the train approached New Canaan, a six-car train discharged passengers and moved south on the same track toward a siding.

The engineer and trainman apparently saw the crash coming and ran through the train to warn the some 300 passengers.

The impact left one woman pinned in the wreckage for 2½ hours. Elizabeth S. Hadden, 19, of New Canaan was listed in critical condition early today at nearby Norwalk Hospital.

Soviet Union, U.S. planning space talks

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union and the United States will hold talks "in the near future" on the possibility of new joint space flights, a top Soviet space official reported Tuesday.

Boris Petrov, president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences' Intercosmos Council, made the announcement in an interview with the Tass news agency. It noted the first anniversary of the U.S.-Soviet Apollo-Soyuz mission.

Petrov did not specify Soviet proposals for new flights other than to say they would also be manned ventures.

Meanwhile, two Soviet cosmonauts continued research work aboard the Salyut-5 space lab, which they boarded July 7.

Social Security revision

State could lose $1.9 million

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri could lose as much as $1.9 million because of a revision in federal Social Security Administration policy on payment of Supplemental Security Income benefits for mental health patients, according to acting mental health director C. Duane Hensley.

Hensley also said on Tuesday that unless the legislature appropriates funds to make up the loss or the policy revision is overturned, mental health patients now placed in nursing homes or other community facilities will have to be returned to state institutions.

That could possibly result in a further loss of federal funds to the state because state institutions, which now qualify for federal grants for improved care, would become overcrowded and be disqualified for the grants, he said.

The loss of funds is prompted by a change in the definition of "medical confinement" to exempt from that category regular nursing home or other community-based facility care that cannot be paid for through Medicaid or Medicare.

Because of that change, patients getting such care will receive $52 a month less in SSI payments, which are used to cover a portion of the cost of their care.

Of the 8,700 patients the state now placed in non-public institutions nearly 2,700 of them are in the non-qualified facilities. The patient placement program is being used because officials say it provides a better atmosphere for many patients and costs about two-thirds less than hospitalization in a state institution.

David Roberts, chief administrator of the department, said reduced payments have already been initiated for patients served through the St. Joseph State Hospital, and he predicted it would only be a matter of time before the reduced payments are imposed elsewhere. The longer it takes, however, the less money the state will lose, he said.

Some facilities have already said the state must make up the difference or state patients will have to be removed, he said.

Hensley said the state's congressional delegation and federal officials have been advised of the "drastic impact" the change will have on the state, and he said a meeting is scheduled with officials of the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare to discuss the matter.

He claimed several possible violations of regulations were made when HEW changed its policy, and should those violations be verified, it could cause the change to be invalidated.

Elton John Named defendant in suit

ATLANTA (AP) — Rock singer Elton John has been named in a $500,000 slander suit filed by an Atlanta man who claims the entertainer had him removed from an Atlanta hotel where John was performing.

Frank Grassie said in the Superior Court lawsuit he filed Tuesday that John had him removed on Monday by telling a hotel security guard that Grassie was exposing himself.

Grassie's lawyer said his client was humiliated by the incident.

John was not available for comment.

Grand jury to probe Monsanto violations

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A federal grand jury has begun hearing testimony in a U.S. Justice Department investigation into possible antitrust violations by the plastic bottle division of Monsanto Co.

Two former high-ranking executives of the St. Louis-based firm, a former company secretary and another person testified for two hours Tuesday. They were granted immunity from criminal prosecution by U.S. District Court Judge James H. Meredith.

Gerald D. Ingenthron, Monsanto corporate communications manager, and Justice Department attorneys declined to say whether the investigation involved price fixing, unfair trade practices or collution.

Monsanto recently entered the plastic bottle industry with its registered trademark brand 'Cycle-Safe' container, introduced by Coca Cola Co., on the East Coast in the form of 32-ounce soft drink bottles.

Dr. William G. Nelson IV, an economist fired Monday by the company, was one of those who testified.

The company said it fired Nelson, former director of economic analysis, because he destroyed a diary relevant to the investigation. Nelson said the company fired him to discredit him before the grand jury.

"I want to see the truth come out," Nelson said. "This is a very sad thing that goes very high in the company."

Symington: balance defense and spending

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Congressman James Symington says a strong military should be maintained while keeping defense spending within reason.

In a position paper released here Tuesday, the candidate for the Democratic U.S. Senate nomination said defense budgets should be carefully scrutinized but that he would not support cuts "I deem dangerous to the defense of the United States."

"At the same time, we do not have unlimited dollars to spend on defense or anything else, and we must make sure defense dollars are wisely, not wastefully spent," the St. Louis County Democrat said.

"We cannot afford everybody's favorite weapon, and it doesn't make sense to sink our limited resources into programs that don't work and planes that don't fly," he added.

The 2nd District U.S. representative said the nation should not engage in foreign military adventures which were not clearly in the national interest.

Symington said he favored continuing the efforts of detente, particularly opportunities for trade and peaceful exchange.

State Department skeptical about Vietnam's intentions

WASHINGTON (AP) — Even though Vietnam is normalizing relations with its neighbors, State Department officials believe the Communist state may still be interested in military domination of Southeast Asia.

The skepticism about Vietnam's intentions is based partly on a recent statement by the Vietnamese foreign minister, whose rhetoric suggested Hanoi's traditional support for insurgents will continue in the area.

When South Vietnam fell in April 1975, there was general agreement among U.S. officials that Hanoi would step up support of rebel movements. The ultimate goal, officials said at the time, was an all-Communist Southeast Asia under Hanoi's leadership.

"The only question in our minds was whether Hanoi would move quickly or slowly," one official said Tuesday. "Obviously they haven't moved quickly, but it's still too early to tell what their long-range intentions are."

In a statement two weeks ago, Foreign Minister Nguyen Duy Trinh said Vietnam "fully supports the Southeast Asian people's just cause of national independence, peace, democracy and social progress."

U.S. officials said that is Hanoi's standard line for opposition to U.S. influence in Southeast Asia and support for insurgent groups.

A major source of U.S. concern is the eventual use of American military equipment captured by the Communists at the end of the war.

It was announced Monday that the newly reunified Vietnam has agreed to establish ties with The Philippines and plans to receive a delegation from Thailand next month to discuss diplomatic relations.

Since the end of the war, The Philippines and Thailand have asserted a greater independence from the United States. Officials believe Hanoi took this into account in deciding to normalize ties with the two countries.

The Philippines has established diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union, China and other Communist countries over the past year and now is demanding sovereignty over U.S. military bases on the islands.

Man, 19, wounded in K.C. shootout

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A young man whose family fled as he barricaded himself on the second floor of their mid-town Kansas City home after a quarrel was critically wounded in a gun battle with police Tuesday.

The gunman, identified as Herman Duncan, 19, shot and wounded a policeman, Neal J. Lipka, in the left arm, neck and left leg. Lipka was reported in good condition.

A hospital spokesman said Duncan was unconscious Tuesday night, and undergoing surgery.

He was shot in the head by another officer through a window on the second floor where Duncan had barricaded himself with at least three firearms, police said.

Police said Duncan's father arrived and was entering the house to persuade him to surrender, when he met his wounded son at the door, blood streaming from his wound.

Until Duncan was shot police were pinned down and unable to remove Lipka from the scene for about 20 minutes.

Lipka apparently was shot after approaching the house at 3810 Olive and retreating to his patrol car to call for help. His bulletproof vest deflected the main charge of the 410-gauge shotgun fired at him.

Twenty patrolmen responded to the call. Several officers were required to control about 100 onlookers who crowded around police barriers.

Police Maj. Robert K. Sawtell said officers found the shotgun, a .308 caliber high-powered rifle and a .22 caliber rifle on the second-floor where Duncan had been.

Candidate announces 5-point plan

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — James Baker, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for attorney general, offered a five-point program for improving the criminal justice system in Missouri during a news conference here Friday.

His program includes a reduction in the range of sentencing and more uniform penalties, passage of a speedy trial act, adoption of limitations on the discretion of the Board of Probation and Parole, construction of medium security prisons in St. Louis and Kansas City and adoption of a minimum jail standards bill.

None of the proposals is new. Similar measures have failed during previous sessions of the legislature.

Rodeo is scheduled in August

CAMDENTON — The annual J-Bar-H Rodeo will be held here Aug. 3-7, featuring rodeo competition and Nashville entertainers.

Over 35,000 persons attended last year's performance, the first in nearly a decade. It was once one of the largest outdoor rodeos in the U.S., according to producers Marcia and Jerry Corners.

Top bucking stock will be provided by Tommy Steiner of Austin, Tex., who had the top bucking bull and horse in 1975.

Tom Hadley will provide live commentary on the various events.

Nashville entertainers Billy Walker, Miss Jean Shepard and Johnny Carver will also be on hand for the five-day show.

Performances will begin at 8 p.m. nightly.

Special concert set here

A special concert by SLAIR, a nine-member unit of the 50-member Strategic Air Command Band, will precede the regular weekly performance of the Sedalia Concert Band at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at Liberty Park.

The SLAIR performance will feature a bicentennial salute to American jazz.

The Sedalia Concert Band, under the direction of Lloyd Knox, will present "On the Street," by Connell; "Sarasoto March," Evans; "Give My Regards to Broadway," Cohan; theme from "The Apartment," Williams and Werle; "Colonel Bogey March," Ford; "Faith of Our Fathers," a hymn; "A Melodic Caravan," McHugh; "Thank Heaven for Little Girls," Lerner and Loewe; "The Storm and Sunshine," King.

After the intermission, the group will perform "Hofstrauser's March," Chambers; "As Long as He Needs Me," Bart; theme from "Love Story," Lai; "Jambalaya (on the Bayou)," Williams; "Leichensteiner Polka," Lindt; and "Sounding Brass," Maxwell.

Part of Kansas a disaster area

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — President Ford declared southeast Kansas a major disaster area because of early July floods, making 10 counties eligible for federal disaster relief funds Tuesday.

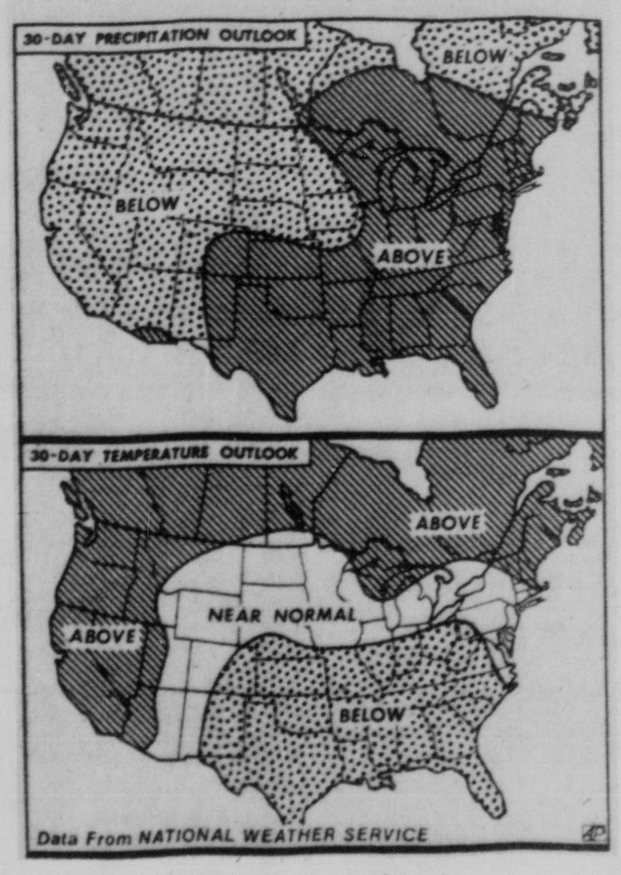

"I am extremely pleased the President acted swiftly to provide needed assistance for the residents of southeast Kansas who suffered losses during the recent flooding," Gov. Robert Bennett said. "In many cases, their losses were total and this federal disaster aid is urgently needed.

Bennett, who said earlier preliminary estimates indicated damage of $20 million in the 10 counties, said the action by President Ford meant federal aid would be available for repair or replacement of public facilities, removal of debris, provision for temporary housing, unemployment assistance, individual and family loans, food stamps and commodities, relocation, legal services and community disaster loans.

The funds will be available for Butler, Cherokee, Cowley, Crawford, Elk, Greenwood, Labette, Montgomery, Neosho and Wilson counties.

Up to 15 inches of rain fell in the area July 2-3, sending rivers and streams on a rampage through southeastern Kansas and southwestern Missouri. Bennett estimated $11.2 million in damage to Kansas farms, $4.5 million to publicly owned property and $3.6 million in other damage.

Thomas P. Dunne, administrator of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, said in Washington Tuesday that representatives from his agency and state officials planned to establish disaster assistance centers in the 10-county area soon to provide information and assistance to flood victims.

30-day outlook

This is the way the nation's weather looks for the next 30 days in terms of precipitation and temperatures, according to the National Weather Service in Washington. (AP Wirephoto)

Corn reserves expected to fall to 28-year low

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. reserves of corn are expected to decline to a 28-year low of 313 million bushels this fall because of record demands for exports, including orders from drought-plagued Western Europe, the Agriculture Department says.

But department officials say the stockpile will quickly be rebuilt and could triple by the fall of 1977 if the 1976 harvest is as productive as now expected.

By the end of the coming marketing year, which begins Oct. 1, corn reserves are expected to rise to about 817 million bushels, the department's Outlook and Situation Board said Tuesday.

In all, the report indicated that corn exports in 1976-77 to all countries will be around 1.45 billion bushels and wheat 1.05 billion bushels, both down from 1975-76.

Currently, from last year's harvest, corn exports are now expected to total a record 1.7 billion bushels through Sept. 30, up 50 million from expectations last month. Officials said prospective larger demands from drought-ravaged Western Europe will account for most of the increase.

Based on July 1 indications, this fall's corn harvest is expected to be a record of 6.55 billion bushels, up 14 per cent from the 1975 record. Officials say that will allow plenty of grain for domestic and export use and will enable a buildup in reserves by the time another harvest is ready next year.

Air base hearings delayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postponement of public hearings until next month was announced Tuesday on an impact statement of the proposed Air Force cutback at Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base near Kansas City.

Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., said he was informed the hearings had been delayed until Aug. 30-Sept. 1. They had been scheduled to begin next Monday.

The delay had been sought by Dole and Kansas City officials, who said they needed more time to prepare for the public hearings.

The Air Force proposed transferring the communications center from Richards-Gebaur to Scott Air Force Base in Illinois, but the move was stalled when a federal judge in Kansas City ordered the Air Force to file an environmental statement on the impact of such a move.

The Air Force issued its report late last month, arguing the move would have an insignificant socio-economic effect on the Kansas City metropolitan area.

Testimony presented at the August hearing or before the Sept. 15 deadline for written comments are to be added to the statement before the Air Force secretary makes a final decision on the move.

Prime minister of Jordan quits

AMMAN, Jordan (AP) — Zaid Rifai, boyhood friend of Jordan's King Hussein, has resigned as prime minister of the Middle Eastern nation, a post he held since 1973.

He was quickly replaced by Madar Badran, chief of the royal cabinet, who had been chief of intelligence and minister of education.

Rifai's resignation was reported Tuesday. The Jordanian government gave no reason for the resignation.

Marxist union leader finds honor after the storm

EDITOR'S NOTE — Harry Bridges has outlived his tormentors and today is an elder statesman of the labor movement, honored by management, by government and by other labor leaders. Neverthless, the rank and file of his own union are forcing him out.

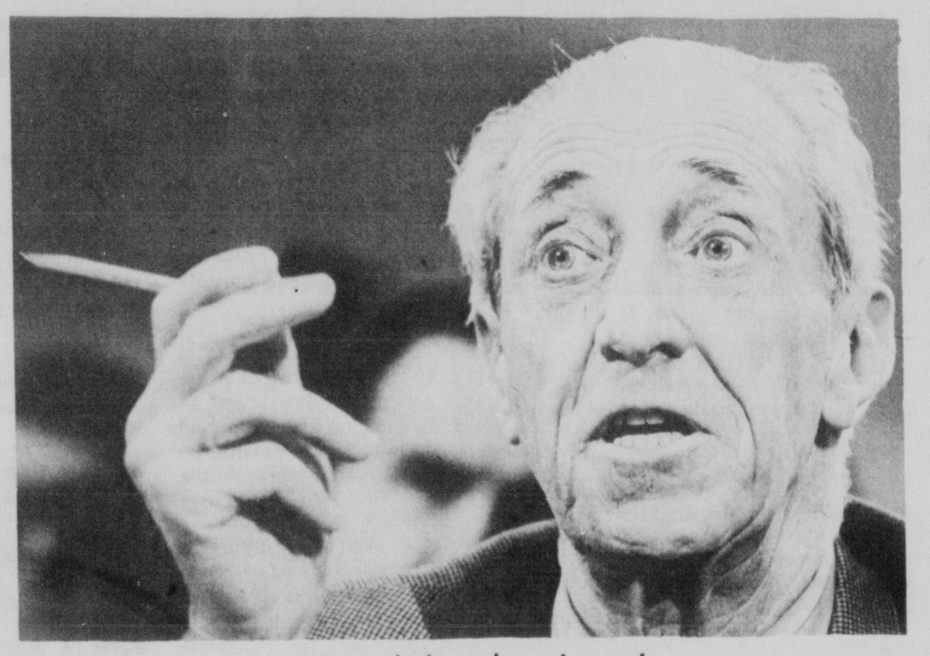

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Harry Bridges, who will be 75 this month, is a living landmark to history's remarkable irony.

The leader of the West Coast Longshoremen was one of the late FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover's early targets for political destruction. Back in the '30s Hoover journeyed here and put out the word that he wanted to talk with anyone who would testify against Harry Bridges.

Some came forward, and thus began years of government hounding, always on the same charge — that Bridges was an alien Communist. "Our investigation shows beyond doubt that Bridges is a Red," Hoover once declared.

But Bridges, now serving his last term as president of the militant International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, survived the assault and is saluted today as an elder statesman of American labor.

Living labor landmark

Harry Bridges, long the object of government Communist investigations, has survived the 16-year assault to become an elder statesman of American labor. The 74-year-old Bridges is shown here during a 1972 appearance before the House labor subcommittee in Washington. (AP)

At a recent testimonial dinner to mark his nearly 42 years of labor leadership, government and industry leaders alike called Bridges "a redblooded patriot" and a "man of integrity."

As for Hoover, his once-formidable image as leader of the world's most respected and effective police organization is being darkened by disclosures of abuses of his vast powers.

"Things do change," the hawk-faced Bridges mused in his talk at the testimonial dinner, attended by 1,600 guests paying $50 a plate.

"Of course I've changed. Not to have changed from the character I was 40 years ago — I'd have to have rocks in my head."

Bridges first plunged into the storms of U.S. waterfront strife in 1929. Then a 19-year-old Australian seaman, he jumped ship and stayed to grow from "an undesirable troublemaker" to a labor statesman.

He has remained an avowed Marxist in thinking, a dedicated trade unionist, a radical critic of American foreign policy and an advocate of expanded trade with the Soviet Union and China.

Bridges also has earned the respect and trust of the shipping industry which had condemned him as serving Communist aims. It now considers him a reliable, pragmatic and far-sighted bargainer, a man of his word.

However, a new and young ILWU rank and file has rebelled in recent years, resoundingly defeating Bridge's proposals to merge the small, independent ILWU with the East Coast International Longshoremen's Association, or with the Teamsters, and instituting rules to force his retirement next April. Bridges will be 75 on July 28.

He contended that the ILWU should seek merger because its shrinking membership — now 60,000 — was too small to stand alone.

Bridges, lean and fast-talking, appears sensitive to suggestions that he has shifted from radicalism to respectability.

"Look, some people talk about me getting more mellow, whatever the hell that means," he told an interviewer.

"I don't think I'm getting more mellow. They mistake finding more effective ways of doing things for mellowness."

But the years have mellowed Bridges' life-style. He once enjoyed convivial sessions with colleagues at Harrington's Irish saloon near ILWU headquarters. But ulcer surgery forced him on the wagon.

He still puts in full working days and his adversaries say his homework is always done on any bargaining issue.

And he frequently consults by telephone with political and labor leaders. The ILWU regularly joins with AFL-CIO unions and the Teamsters in shows of labor solidarity even though the ILWU has remained an independent union since its expulsion by the CIO in 1959.

Bridges has little taste for interviews, preferring his "On The Beam" column in the union newspaper as a principal forum for his ideas, which he describes as Marxist.

"The basic thing about this lousy capitalistic system is that the workers create the wealth, but those who own it, the rich, keep getting richer and the poor get poorer," he declared recently.

Bridges emerged as a labor leader of stature in a 1934 strike that won contract recognition and established a dock workers' hiring hall.

The strike was bitter and bloody. Two men died on July 5, marked in ILWU history as Bloody Thursday, in a clash between 1,000 police and 5,000 strikers and sympathizers. More than 100 were injured.

With the backing of all the city's organized labor in the three-day general strike, contract recognition eventually was won. But more strikes followed, and the shipping industry continued to charge Communist direction and domination of the waterfront union.

It was industry pressure, many believe, that generated the government's constant effort to deport Bridges, an effort it didn't quit until losing a final court battle in the 1950s.

Attraction to planetarium leads to new laser art form

NEW YORK (AP) — Twenty years ago Ivan Dryer pointed out the lights of the heavens as a guide at the Griffith Observatory in Los Angeles.

Today the laser lights of his creation, Laserium, dance on that same dome at Griffith and seven other planetariums in the United States, two in Canada, and the latest in Kyoto, Japan.

"I always looked on the planetarium as a fabulous theatrical environment," he said on a visit to New York, where the entertainment has been showing at the Hayden Planetarium since October 1974.

"I took a 'trip to the moon' at Griffith when I was 9 that astonished me and led me to study astronomy."

Dryer's childhood attraction to the planetarium as a place of wonder has developed into a new art form based on the laser, an acronym for Light Amplification by Stimulated Emission of Radiation.

Laserium consists of a single one-watt laser beam (harmless to the audience) that first is split into the four primary colors — red, green, blue and yellow — then travels through a series of optical devices before being projected on the planetarium dome.

"Since laser light produces the purest, most vivid, colors people can perceive, Laserium's audiences see powerful visual illusions," Dryer explains. "Spiraling galaxies and cosmic clouds drift, seemingly, through the night sky on the dome."

So intrigued was Dryer with his youthful brush with the stars that he majored in astrophysics at San Diego State College. Interest in the cosmic led to a switch to philosophy and a transfer to UCLA.

Although he was under Griffith's normal hiring age he was selected to be a tour guide. "I was so fascinated that I would spend my break time studying the stars of the southern hemisphere which I never got to see," recalls the long-haired writer, filmmaker and still photographer.

He worked at Griffith on and off for 11 years and became convinced that the planetarium was a place to do something special with film. Laser photographs of Dr. Elsa Garmire, Caltech laser researcher, sparked him to experiment with filmed laser effects and later live effects. Eventually he approached Dr. William Kaufman, then director at Griffith, about doing a live laser show.

There were some stumbling blocks along the way, the 37-year-old Dryer admits. Asked to cut a ribbon of seatbelt material at a ceremony with their $12,000 argon gas laser, he and colleague Charles MacDanald watched in exasperation as the laser did not even dent it. A switch to krypton gas led to a successful demonstration and eventual approval by the Los Angeles City Council.

The show played its first public performance Nov. 19, 1973.

"No one in the audience suspected that we had finished building the projection system at 5 a.m. and had never had a rehearsal," Dryer remembers.

"The palentarium is unique in that the major spectacle there is the dome — the environment itself," he says. "It is not confining like having to focus on a TV or movie screen. When I first saw laser effects I suspected they would work spectacularly in a planetarium. The medium and the environment complement each other perfectly."

"Planetariums got started in Germany in the '20s but didn't catch on in America until the depression," Dryer points out. "The same need to escape a restricting world that made movies so popular helped make the plentarium an attraction. Now, they're more popular than ever."

Welsh counties told water to be curtailed

LONDON (AP) — Nearly half a million people in southeastern Wales were told Tuesday their water supply will be cut off for 13 hours daily starting next Monday because of Britain's drought.

The weather bureau said a few drops of rain fell in London but it was too little to be measured. The last measurable rain fell June 20 and even that lasted little more than five minutes.

People in the Welsh counties of Glamorgan and Monmouthshire were told that water from two reservoirs there will be cut off from 7 p.m. to 8 a.m. daily for an indefinite period.

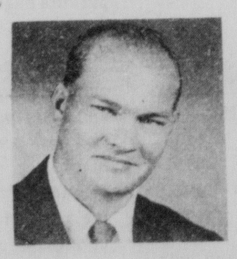

The announcement came on the eve of the government's publication of new powers for local authorities to control water useage.

George Washington's military achievements were never fully appreciated by his countrymen. What can not be denied, however, is that he stood firm during the greatest adversities when many other political and military figures turned away. His accomplishments were appreciated in Europe, The World Almanac notes, as exemplified by the British fleet's 20-gun salute upon word of his death.

Reagan's record vs. his platform

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON — We have a habit in the United States of judging a man by what he says — almost ignoring what he does.

If he says what we like to hear, we forgive a man whose actions do violence to our beliefs. If he says what we don't like to hear, he cannot please us whatever he does.

Cromley

Let us then, in assessing Reagan, ignore what he says, what he promises and how he postures.

And look at what he did as governor.

He castigated the state universities — and doubled the budgets for higher education. He verbally slashed right and left and to the quick on health programs and doubled or tripled their budgets, depending on your mathematics.

He railed against government spending and higher taxes, and increased the state budget to 2.5 times its level when he came to office. On balance, he boosted taxes proportionately.

He talked about the California state legislature in the harshest terms but personally negotiated privately at greater length with legislative leaders than any previous governor. He introduced more compromise bills and made more legislative compromises on major as well as minor points — perhaps more than any California executive within my memory.

In this, Reagan was like a first-rate union negotiator, castigating adversary in public but dealing issue by issue pragmatically with the verve of an old-fashioned horse trader. Here he had the respect of some of his roughest opponents.

He lashed out at the welfare system — and ended up agreeing to quite liberal benefits and greatly increased spending. His great achievement here, however, was in markedly reducing the number of chiselers on the rolls.

His words have given him a reputation favoring business against the small consumer. But he sponsored what is perhaps the toughest water pollution control law in the United States, and stepped up regulation of the auto repair, home insurance, real estate and retail businesses and of doctors and dentists.

In cooperation with the legislature he reduced the oil depletion allowance, increased income taxes from 7 to 11 per cent for the top bracket, took more low-income families off the tax rolls, stiffened the capital gains tax, increased inheritance tax rates and gave renters tax credits. He supported a bill giving mental patients the right to refuse shock treatments.

Like Jimmy Carter, Reagan brought in a considerable group of bright young men when he moved into the governorship. As in the Carter administration, there was no hint of financial hanky-panky. And Reagan's appointments, like Carter's, were regarded as above average.

But Reagan's style as governor was worlds apart from Carter's. The latter came to work early, stayed late, insisted on knowing and analyzing every detail of every operation, and in the end, Carter's way prevailed.

Reagan as governor, worked from 9 to 5. He delegated work, was interested only in overall policies, left his cabinet officers and assistants to develop and manage his and their programs with virtually free hands. Details were of little interest.

Like Carter and most other politicians, Reagan is very sensitive to criticism from his opponents. But it's reported he'll take straight, highly critical talk in private from his friends, not a common trait among governors or presidents.

Carl Rowan

Dumbness by HEW hurts all

WASHINGTON — I sometimes think the officials charged with enforcing the nation's civil rights laws are part of a Machiavellian plot to discredit the entire civil rights movement. They do this by making civil rights rulings that are so patently absurd they are bound to enrage most of the public.

Rowan

An example of this is the ruling by HEW's Office of Civil Rights that father-son or mother-daughter events in public schools constitute illegal sex discrimination under Title IX of the 1972 education amendments.

President Ford, no great civil libertarian, has been given a cheap way to become a national hero by reacting angrily, rescinding the HEW ruling so that these "traditional American activities" may continue.

And no doubt, from Bemidji to Beaumont, millions of Americans are saying that the civil rights advocates have gone crazy.

It seems to me that common sense would have told the lawyers and bureaucrats in the Office of Civil Rights that Congress never intended that Title IX should make father-son dinners or mother-daughter events illegal.

It is ludicrous to compare such events with truly pernicious affairs where people of a certain race, religion or sex are barred with ugly intent.

Father-son affairs aren't organized discrimination against mothers and daughters. They are merely a device to corral a lot of dads who otherwise would chase the dollar so resolutely and blindly that they would never spend any time with their sons.

Mother-daughter events have nothing to do with females plotting to discriminate against males. I suspect educators noticed a long time ago that at about age 12, 13, 14 some tension, even hostility, creeps into the relationship between many a mother and daughter. These school events are perceived as one way to force some communication between the mother and daughter.

Beyond all this, these events are just a sure-fire way of dragooning parents into a contact with their children's school which might result in greater financial and other support.

Sure, I am aware that some feminists think Title IX makes illegal all sexually exclusive activities — even Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts, Boys' State and Girls' State programs, all of which have been given special exemption by Congress.

Lynda Weston, a staff member of the National Organization of Women, complains that "we are watching Title IX being nickeled and dimed to death."

Ms. Weston suggests that mother-daughter events are inclined to be second-rate affairs where females sit around sewing, or sipping tea, while father-son events tend to be major occasions where the males soak up the wisdom of some wise, famous, costly speaker. Now, that is another story — wherever it is true.

This silly ruling banning father-son and mother-daughter events arose from a query by the school superintendent in Scottsdale, Ariz. Nobody smart enough to be a school superintendent needs HEW lawyers to tell him that Title IX was intended to wipe out the kind of rank discrimination Ms. Weston suggests is commonplace. The same resources must be committed to mother-daughter affairs as to father-son affairs. And the wise school official ought not hesitate to say, when something truly special is to occur at one of these events: "This is important enough that all our students and-or parents ought to hear it' so let's open this dinner to everyone."

There is nothing terribly mysterious or complicated about patterns of bigotry and discrimination in America. Most of us know perfectly well when women or blacks or other minorities are being cheated. We also know when we are using a scalpel or a cleaver to cut out those injustices.

In the matter of father-son and mother-daughter affairs, HEW used an axe — and wound up rendering a gross disservice to the civil rights struggle.

An ordinance should be passed making it a finable offense to be caught hanging around the calaboose windows, talking to the city prisoners. All day long a gang of boys can be seen at the windows, conversing with the prisoners, exchanging obscene jokes and learning the ways of vice.

Amendments face voters in August

Besides numerous candidates, voters will be confronted by seven proposed constitutional amendments in the Aug. 3 primary election. Some of these are fairly routine in nature; others are of great importance.

Amendment No. 1 removes the 25-year limit on laws granting partial tax relief for lands devoted exclusively to forestry purposes. This change would tend to encourage more forestry in Missouri and we would favor its approval.

Amendment No. 2 would eliminate the provision of numbering election ballots and listing the number opposite each voter's name, with the ballot number covered by the familiar black patch. The reasoning here is that the practice discourages voting to some extent, the fear being that election officials will learn how a person votes. We have our doubts that this is true to any large extent, but will go along with Amendment No. 2 anyway.

Amendment No. 3 would permit cities to issue industrial revenue bonds with a simple majority vote of the governing body, dropping the requirement for a majority popular vote. It would also authorize counties to issue certain revenue bonds with voter approval.

Since there is no liability to a city from industrial revenue bonds (which are paid off by revenues from the project itself), and bond-holders assume all risk, we can see no need for the cumbersome and costly requirement of a popular vote. Missouri is one of the few remaining states to require such a vote, and the present situation favors industry locating in surrounding states, at the expense of the Missouri economy. We favor approval of this amendment.

Amendment No. 4 gives both houses of the Missouri General Assembly the power to rescind rules and regulations issued by state agencies, by concurrent resolutions, without the governor's approval. This is the legislature's response to the rapid growth recently in rules and regulations issued by state agencies, which the lawmakers feel has resulted in legislation by bureaucracy in some instances.

While this is no doubt true, it seems to us that Amendment No. 4 carries with it serious potential for legislative invasion of executive powers. Gov. Christopher Bond is expected to actively oppose this amendment. We may later be convinced otherwise, but at this point we are inclined to oppose its passage.

Amendment No. 5 would simply change the Missouri Constitution to eliminate the now-illegal 1945 language calling for separate public schools for white and black children.

Amendments No. 6 and 7 will be discussed in subsequent editorials.

Carter looks up to Adm. Rickover

By JACK ANDERSON
with LES WHITTEN

NEW YORK — To the Democratic delegates who came here to acclaim Jimmy Carter, he remains an enigma. Most of them will leave the Democratic convention still a bit chary about their nominee. What makes Carter run? They will go home wondering.

The key to his behavior, according to sources close to Carter, can be found in the example of his former commanding officer, Vice Adm. Hyman Rickover. The salty, old curmudgeon battled the bureaucracy, slashed red tape, overcame obstacles, refused to be deterred.

And he abhorred any waste of the taxpayers' money.

Those who know Carter say his view of Washington was first shaped in the reconverted ladies' washroom where Rickover was banished to develop the nuclear submarine the naval bureaucracy pooh-poohed. The Democratic candidate, if he should become President, can be expected to pursue his goals with the same single-mindedness.

"It will be, 'Damn the bureaucrats and full steam ahead!'" predicted one intimate. Yet, like Rickover, the source said, Carter will operate within the system.

The admiral also demanded total dedication from his subordinates. Carter will expect the same commitment from the men around him. They will have to put on the crusader's armor, our sources anticipate.

Before Carter became an active candidate, he sought out Rickover and spent an evening with him. Our sources say the presidential aspirant went to Rickover more to draw inspiration than to solicit advice.

These sources say Rickover influenced Carter's "attitude toward achievement" but not necessarily his attitude toward the Pentagon. The man who tonight becomes the Democratic standard-bearer admires Rickover tremendously, they say, but may not agree with his military views.

It would be hard to find two more disparate men than the smiling, engaging Carter and the abrasive, waspish Rickover. Carter was brought up in Georgia, a scion of the upper class. Rickover came to this country at age five, an immigrant mite tossed into Chicago's slum land, the son of a Polish pants presser.

Both men made it to Annapolis, Rickover in the 1920s, Carter two decades later. The youth from Georgia was a model midshipman, polished, poised, popular. The immigrant from Chicago was always out of step. He was out of step on the drill field, out of step on the dance floor.

Yet Carter was later to say: "Adm. Rickover had a profound effect on my life, perhaps more than anyone except my own parents."

Carter has never forgotten their first meeting. He applied to Rickover for a job in the nuclear submarine program. "How did you stand in your class at the Naval Academy?" asked the admiral.

"Sir, I stood 59th in a class of 820," snapped back Carter, pleased with himself.

"Did you do your best?"

Carter paused. "No, sir"' he admitted, "I didn't always do my best."

"Why not?" demanded Rickover. It was a question that has challenged Carter ever since, his friends say.

WALLACE'S LAST HURRAH? George Wallace's appearance before the Democratic convention is viewed by many political veterans as his last hurrah. After his poor showing in the primaries, they tend to regard him as a washed-out, politically impotent old man.

But even as they are consigning him to the political pastures, the Alabama governor is gearing up for his next campaign. His staff, according to inside sources, is preparing another political fund-raising appeal. "If people respond," said one source, "we can keep it going."

For the record, those who are authorized to speak for Wallace are cautious about the future. His chief political honcho, Charles Snider, acknowledged that they will keep a skeleton campaign staff "as long as possible."

As he explained it, "We're going to try to keep something going, to keep in touch with the constituents we have."

They speak vaguely of a judgeship or a federal appointment for Wallace. But they really have their eye on the seat that Sen. John Sparkman, D.-Ala., is expected to vacate in 1978, our sources confide.

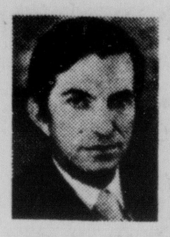

Wallace may be less willing than his hangers-on, whose jobs depend on keeping him in office.

"Tell me the truth, ace, how did you know we were Americans — the shoes?"

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Tetracyclines fight infection

Dear Dr. Lamb — Would you explain the medication tetracycline to me? How many different illnesses is it used for? My grandson's doctor prescribed it for his acne condition and my doctor prescribed it for me to take as an antibiotic in case of a virus infection. Is the constant use of this drug harmful?

Dear Reader — The tetracyclines include several different antibiotics. The best known of these are Aureomycin, Terramycin and Achromycin. They are broad-spectrum antibiotics, meaning they are effective against a large number of different organisms. That is why your doctor and your grandson's doctor used them for different infections.

Your doctor did not give you tetracycline to treat viruses since this drug is not effective against viruses. He probably gave it to you to counteract any secondary infection from bacteria.

Some people are aware that these medicines are used in treatment of "virus pneumonia." The catch is that what was once called virus pneumonia is not caused by a virus at all but by a very small bacteria that is treatable with antibiotics.

In common concentrations they stop reproduction of bacteria and are therefore called bacteriostatic. In greater concentrations they may actually kill the bacteria and are then called bacteriocidal.

No medicine is entirely safe. Antibiotics are safe when used as directed. The most common problem is that the patient fails to follow the doctor's advice. As soon as the patient feels better he stops the medicine. This may enable the development of resistant bacteria. For the full effectiveness against some infections it is important that the full course of treatment be carried out.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am troubled by insomnia. A phenobarbital pill helps solve my sleeplessness, but I'm worried that I might become addicted if I take it night after night. Is my worry groundless?

I find Tylenol helpful too, but I worry about that for the same reason. Do you think I may take one or two Tylenol tablets to overcome my insomnia? If you advise against both of these, I'd appreciate your letting me know the name of something I can take without fear of addiction.

Dear Reader — There are countless methods people use to get to sleep. What works for one does not work for another. I would agree that the continual use of phenobarbital may not be a good idea. I see no reason why you cannot take two Tylenol tablets if that does the trick for you, but I would not want my other readers to consider this an endorsement for Tylenol for sleeplessness. In this amount it should not harm you and if it works for you that is fine.

I have found that the antihistamines are often very useful to induce a pleasant sleep without any hangover effect or problems of addiction. Many people do well with a Banadryl capsule at bedtime. You would need to get the prescription from your doctor.

U.S. economist sees record corn harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Healthy harvests should provide farmers with "reasonably good" profits in coming months and consumers with stabilizing food prices well into 1977, the Department of Agriculture's chief economist says.

Don Paarlberg predicted a record corn crop if enough rain falls and said the prospects point to "an abundance of food at reasonably stable prices" through 1977.

He said Monday that food price politics probably will aid incumbent politicians.

With strong export demand, including larger sales to drought-stricken western Europe and more animals to feed on U.S. farms, it appears farm prices will be "reasonably good" in the months ahead, he said, indicating farmers should get an adequate rate of return for their labors.

"I don't see anything here that's going to upset consumers as they were upset a few years ago," Paarlberg said. "I don't see economic distress calls coming out of the rural areas or coming out of the consuming areas, and I think that's got to be good for the incumbents."

His comments followed a Department of Agriculture report that showed 1976 corn production this fall could be a record of more than 6.55-billion bushels, up 14 per cent from 1975's record 5.8-billion bushels.

As livestock feed, corn is the leading raw material for producing meat, poultry and milk. Paarlberg said that including the wheat harvest, estimated at 2.04-billion bushels, second only to last year's 2.1 billion, this year's total grain output is expected to be a record.

But he cautioned that some areas, including South Dakota and other parts of the upper Midwest, have been hurt by dry weather and that the corn crop will depend to a large extent on July and August weather.

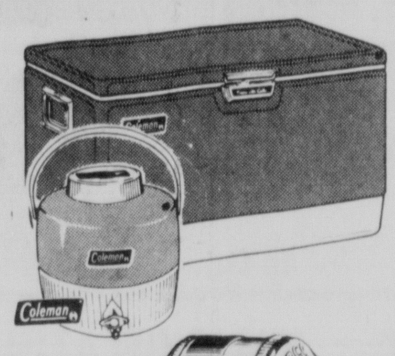

He said the department is sticking with its prediction that retail food prices are "most likely" to rise only 3 to 4 per cent this year against an 8.5 per cent gain in 1975 and jumps of 14.5 per cent in each of the two previous years.

National stars uncork long ball in 7-1 All-Star romp

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Ho Hum, the National League beat the American League again in the All-Star Game.

So what's new?

Just for the record, the score in the National's fifth straight triumph and 13th in the last 14 years was 7-1. San Diego's Randy Jones, the starting pitcher, threw three scoreless innings and was the winning pitcher.

And George Foster, the Cincinnati Reds' outfielder who leads the majors with 72 RBI, drove in three runs, two with a third-inning homer and was selected the game's Most Valuable Player. The loser was Mark Fidrych, the Detroit Tigers' rookie sensation who pitched two innings and left trailing 2-0.

The National League now leads the All-Star series 28-18-1. And no relief is in sight for the beleaguered American Leaguers.

Perhaps John Montefusco, the outspoken San Francisco Giants' pitcher, put the dull game in its proper perspective.

"I didn't have my good fastball, but I didn't need it against the American League."

It would seem that all the National League needs in this annual American League summer nightmare is gloves, bats and balls.

"It's a little bit embarrassing," said Fred Lynn of the Boston Red Sox, whose fourth-inning home run accounted for the loser's only run against five National League pitchers.

Lynn said the big difference was the National League bats. "They hit," he said. "And they hit the long ball too. They have a bit more power than we do."

Lynn's boss, manager Darrell Johnson, who directed the American League, had a different view.

"It was National League pitching," said Johnson. "Their pitchers did a damn good job."

There you have it, good hitting, good pitching, and throw in those three snappy double plays the National League turned and you have another American League defeat.

The 27-year-old Foster outwardly took his MVP accolade almost with a yawn.

"I was quite honored to be selected," he said, his face and voice devoid of emotion. "But I didn't come out here to play to win any honors. I just wanted to play the best I could to help us win. Whatever came my way in honors, fine."

Foster drove in the National League's second run in the first inning after Pete Rose had singled and scored on a Steve Garvey triple.

What about the home run? Foster showed he had a little humor behind that poker face.

"It was a fastball. If you want to know was it up or down or in or out, I'd say it was in reach of my bat."

Foster said he wasn't sure the ball was going out. "I thought maybe that cross wind out there might be holding up the ball. The main thing is I was trying to be aggressive at the plate."

The Cincinnati Reds produced seven of the National League's 10 hits. That didn't surprise Pete Rose, the wisecracking Reds' third baseman.

"We got more bats than anybody, so we're supposed to get more hits," said Rose, who singled, tripled and scored a run. "Foster did what he's been doing all year. The only difference is that he got only one hit. He usually gets two or three."

The 21-year-old Fidrych, a free spirit who says what's on his mind, took the loss in stride. The rookie, 9-2 in the first half of the American League season, gave up four hits and two runs in two innings.

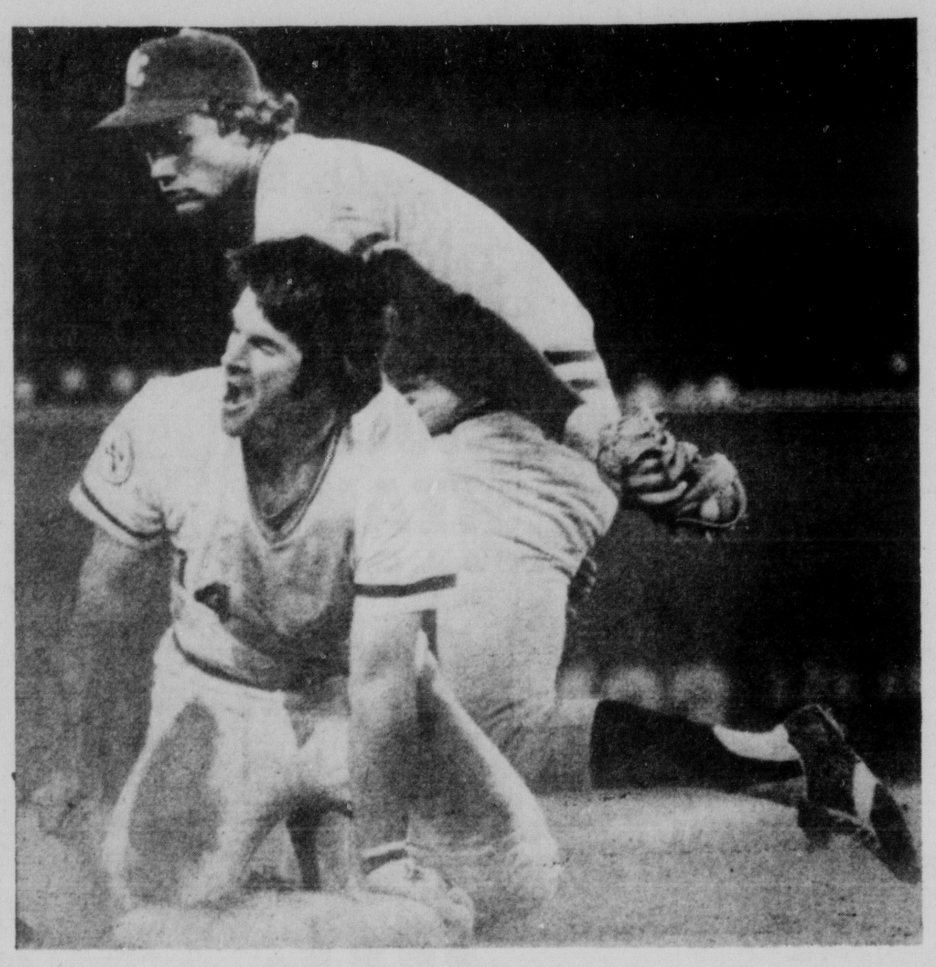

"No one should smile after a loss," said the curly-haired Tigers' pitcher. "But this is a different game. I can go home proud because I was on an All-Star team. You can't forget anything like this. There's this ball with everyone's name on it, a trophy and the ring ... I never even had a high school ring."

Winning manager Sparky Anderson of the Reds said he believed the dominance over the American League stemmed from the office of former NL President Warren Giles.

"He believed the National League had to win," Anderson recalled. "And there is an enthusiasm in the National League to win."

San Diego's Jones, as always, kept a low profile. He said the only thing wrong was that he gave up a walk. He said he was nervous at the start, but settled down after a two-out first-inning walk to Kansas City's George Brett.

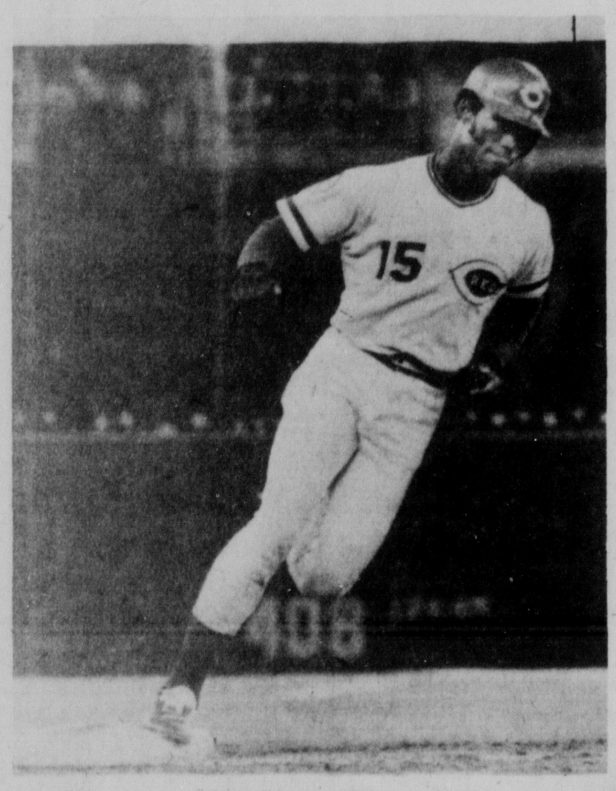

As for the game itself, before a sellout crowd of 63,974, including President Ford, the Nationals built a 4-0 lead with their two in the first and Foster's home run after a one-out single in the third. Lynn's homer made it 4-1. The NL put it away in the ninth on an RBI single by Ken Griffey, and Cesar Cedeno's two-run homer, all off California's Frank Tanana.

Rose beats throw, tag

Cincinnati's Pete Rose of the N.L. All-Stars, holds onto third base after he legged out a triple in the fifth inning of Tuesday night's classic in Philadelphia. Kansas City's third baseman George Brett tries to make the tag on Rose, but the throw from the outfield was too late. The National League continued its recent domination over the A.L. with a 7-1 victory.

N.L. fired up for classic

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The National League players bring more than just the thrill of being named to the All-Star team with them when they take the field in this midsummer festival. They come with fire in their eyes and base hits in their bats.

"Everytime they get in the clubhouse," said Manager Sparky Anderson, "it's more than just being honored. They say, 'Hey, let's go.'

"Maybe that sounds like high school or college," the white-haired Cincinnati manager said. "But to me, that's what it's all about."

The Nationals, powered by a pair of two-run homers by Cincinnati's George Foster and Houston's Cesar Cedeno, put together a 10-hit attack that produced a 7-1 victory over the AL. The Nationals have won 13 of the last 14 games, including the last five.

"I think it goes back to Warren Giles (former National League president)," Anderson said in trying to explain the streak. "He wanted the National League to start winning.

Soft-throwing Randy Jones of the San Diego Padres, who worked three scoreless innings and got the victory, agreed with Anderson that the NL stars bubble at the thought of winning the game.

The 26-year-old left-hander, baseball's winningest pitcher with a 16-3 mark, said he noticed the gut feeling last year when he earned a save.

"When I came to the park, I was nervous about the game," said Jones. "But I could see the excitement they had. This calmed me down. I wanted to win just like the rest of the guys."

Foster, the game's Most Valuable Player with his homer and three RBI over-all, agreed. "You try to get up a little more because you know you're not going to be in there the whole game. You want to show what you can do," added the Reds' slugger. "There's a whole lot of pride involved."

Foster and Anderson both pointed to the fact that seven of the 10 NL hits were struck by Cincinnati players. Seven Reds played in the game.

Foster went further by evaluating the talent in the two leagues.

"I think there are better caliber ballplayers in the National League than in the American League," the game's top run-producer said. "But the American League is progressing. They're getting better all the time."

Red Sox Manager Darrell Johnson, who piloted the AL squad, was at a loss to explain the NL's streak.

"They've had great success in the last couple of years, but it's the reverse of the 13 years before that when the American League dominated the game," the stone-faced Johnson said.

"I can't tell you the answer," he added. "I don't know what it is."

Johnson also pointed out the American League had only five hits, with Lynn's blast into the right field seats the only extra base blow.

"If you want to talk about the game today, I think it was the National League pitchers," said Johnson.

The loss spoiled the ballyhooed debut of Detroit rookie sensation Mark Fidrych, who worked the first two innings and took the loss. The hard-throwing right-hander, nicknamed "The Bird," gave up two runs in the first and four hits over-all.

"I don't know what happened," the moppy-haired 21-year-old said. "I was up for the game. Maybe I tried to overthrow."

Reps meet to act on pact

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Representatives of the major league baseball owners were to meet today and consider a new contract with the union that would recognize players' freedom of movement for the first time.

After more than 13 months of bargaining, which at times was bitter, the baseball owners and the players reached the agreement on the four-year contract Monday, the eve of the All-Star Game.

In calling the meeting of the 24 club owners, Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said its purpose "is to receive and act upon a report of the Player Relations Committee recommending ratification of collective bargaining agreements with the Players Association."

Kuhn said he would recommend approval of the contract although he declined to give details of what it contained.

It was understood, however, that the contract would enable a player to become a free agent after six years of major league service.

The agreement would replace the so-called reserve system under which a player was bound to one club until he was traded, sold or released.

The new agreement is divided into two parts—a four-year basic agreement covering working conditions and economic terms other than players' salaries, and a four-year benefit plan.

Olympic hierarchy

IOC rules with strong iron hand

MONTREAL (AP) — Lord Killanin is a puckish Irish nobleman who constantly puffs on a curve-stemmed pipe, delights in making jokes and sends his jowls into a dance when he laughs — which is often.

He is a sharp contrast to the stern, prudish and dictatorial Avery Brundage, the man he succeeded as president of the International Olympic Committee. Brundage died a little over a year ago.

Killanin heads one of the most exclusive, most powerful and — perhaps next to the United Nations — one of the most indecisive deliberative bodies in the universe.

These are the men currently wrestling with the problems that destroyed the original Olympic Games in Greece centuries ago — politics, commercialism, national aggrandizement and inflexible pride.

They are magnficent in the art of condemnation, as in the official chastisement of Canada in its refusal to let Taiwan compete under its official name and colors. They cringe at strong, firm action. They have been letting member nations get away with abuses for years.

One has to look over the makeup of the club to understand these contradictions.

The IOC is a collection of more than 70 lords, princes, barons, maharajahs and industrial tycoons with a Midas touch.

They all are well healed, as if wealth were a prerequisite for membership. You don't find any plumbers, bricklayers or truck drivers sitting in the august councils. There are no women, and the few blacks are from the African nations.

"We are beholden to no government and no earthly power," Brundage used to say. In you listened to Brundage, you would know IOC members are neither elected nor chosen. They are ordained.

"We are more like a board of trustees," says Killanin. The pleasant Irishman has brought a touch of humanity to the order, if no more clout. Whereas Brundage was a dictator, held in awe and fear by fellow IOC members, Killanin is a diplomat. He even accepts expenses, which Brundage shunned.

"The IOC presidency should never give the impression that it can be bought," he said.

If it could be bought, many in its ranks could write the check.

Hassle over arena rent

Time running out on Denver purchase of NHL Scouts

DENVER (AP) — A group headed by sportscaster Bud Palmer of Vail had until this evening to give National Hockey League officials a down payment for purchase of the hockey franchise in Kansas City.

Denver city officials, meanwhile, stood firm on what they called a final, break-even offer to rent McNichols Sports Arena to the proposed new team.

The rental issue has held up efforts by Palmer to obtain the Kansas City Scouts.

"I think we'll stick to our guns on this one," Robert P. Locke, the city's manager of general services, said Tuesday. He said he was notified late Tuesday by backers of the proposed franchise that they were holding out for a more favorable rent contract than the one the city has offered.

Locke contended the promoters want the city to rent the arena at a loss, which he said would amount to subsidizing the new team "until they got their feet on the ground."

Although the selling price of the Scouts hasn't been made public, Palmer recently said he would need "$2.5 million up front" to buy the team and move it to Denver. Locke said the down payment will be "in six figures, probably $100,000."

NHL officials were to meet in Chicago Thursday to review the issue, but an attorney for Palmer's group said Tuesday that an extention of today's deadline was "unlikely."

Locke said the city has offered Palmer's group a five-year contract calling for a per-game minimum rent of $3,500. In the first year of the contract, the new team would pay the city $3,500 for each game or 4 per cent of gate receipts, whichever was greater.

The percentage would increase to 6 per cent in the second and third years and to 8 per cent in the fourth and fifth years.

Palmer's group wants the minimun charge to be $2,500 a game and the gate percentage to be figured over a season.

Loss of status may be beneficial

TORONTO (AP) — The Toronto Sun reported Tuesday that it has learned Olympic athletes caught peddling their names for money and subsequently losing their amateur status will be reimbursed $25,000.

The newspaper said in a dispatch from here that a blank contract it acquired indicated that at least one firm is actively trying to sign up amateur athletes to promote commercial products — a violation of Olympic rules.

The contract is the same as one that triggered a nervous reaction when discovered last week in the Olympic Village by a member of the International Olympic Committee, the paper reported.

In a short statement to competitors and various sporting federations, the IOC made note of a circular issued on Nov. 5 of last year, which drew attention to possible violations of IOC rules by Olympic competitors regarding payments made directly or indirectly to them personally, resulting from contracts for equipment, etc.

"IOC Rule 26 and bylaws, and Rule 55, 'Advertising and Propaganda' will be strictly applied to the Games...and any contravention of those rules by competitors will result in immediate diwqualification."

Several parts of the blank contract upset IOC officials, according to Sports Editor George Gross of the Sun who wrote the article.

The story reads:

"9. In the event an act...should directly and solely result in...(athlete) loss of his amateur status...will pay to...(athlete) the sum of $25,000 in United States currency as stipulated damages..."

The six-page legal document, the paper said, is obviously prepared by lawyers familiar with sports endorsement policies and includes abuses which had been suspected in so-called amateur sports. But no actual contract form had surfaced before.

The contract, the newspaper said, doesn't name the sporting goods company nor does it carry any other heading than "Agreement."

Close drug screening planned for Olympics

MONTREAL (AP) — A sophisticated drug checking program to discourage Olympic athletes from using outlawed stimulants and to catch those who break the rules will be put into effect later this week.

About 2,300 urine samples taken from participants will be analyzed for drugs during the Games, according to Dr. Robert Dugal, head of the doping control program. All medal winners, fourth-place finishers in most events and others selected at random will be tested.

Drug use has been a problem at recent Olympics and other world sports events. Two medal winners from the 1976 Winter Olympics at Innsbruck, Austria, and seven from the 1972 Games at Munich were disqualified and stripped of their medals for using drugs banned by the International Olympic Committee.

Dugal said some of the random sampling would be aimed at determining whether athletes were using anabolic steroids, added to the list of forbidden drugs this year. Some athletes take the steroids to give them greater strength. An official said a survey made in Sweden two years ago showed that 75 per cent of athletes checked were using anabolic steroids.

The results of most of the tests will be known within eight to 10 hours. However, tests to determine the use of steriods requires four days.

Taiwan firm on pullout

TAIPEI (AP) — The Nationalist Chinese Olympic Committee reiterated Tuesday its decision to withdraw from the Montreal Olympic Games "because of Canada's discrimination."

The decision was reached in a closed door meeting here by the Republic of China Olympic Committee and ranking sports officials. It came after reports indicated that the full session of the International Olympic Committee approved its executive board's proposal.

The IOC suggested the Taiwanese athletes march behind the IOC emblem and insignia without using the name Republic of China at the opening of the Games. Nationalist China rejected the idea Saturday.

The Canadian government said it would not permit the athletes from Taiwan to enter the country if they used the name of Republic of China. Canada recognizes mainland China.

K.C. bowler takes over tourney lead

DALLAS (AP) — Judy Soutar, of Grandview, Mo., the defending champion, took over the lead here Tuesday night in the Metroplex Professional Womens Bowlers Association Open.

Mrs. Soutar, wife of men's PBA champion Dave Soutar, divided her opening six games of match play, but rolled a 1280 scratch. Picking up 90 bonus pins for her three match victories, she has a combined total of 1370.

Pat Costello, of Union City, Calif., is in second place, only four pins back of Mrs. Soutar with a 1366 total. She was 5-1 in match play, picking up 150 bonus pins in the process.

Donna Adamek, the 19-year-old professional from Los Angeles, Calif., who led after the 18 games of qualifying, is in seventh place with a 1248 total. Miss Adamek is bowling in only her fourth professional tournament. so far this year, she has finished fourth in the U.S. Open and fifth at the Greater Chicago classic.

The women bowl 12 more games of match play Wednesday with the champion being crowned Wednesday night.

Calgary pulls out 1-point win

REGINA, Sask. (AP) — Quarterback Joe Pisarcik guided Calgary 75 yards in eight plays for a last-minute touchdown that gave the Stampeders a 22-21 victory over the Saskatchewan Roughriders in a Canadian Football League exhibition game Tuesday night.

African nations push for a black pullout

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Black American Olympics entrants are to be asked today to follow various black African countries in withdrawing from the games, says The Sacramento Bee.

The Bee quoted an anonymous source Tuesday as saying black Africans would approach the American blacks "individually in an attempt to promote the pullout."

"A traumatic political experience" could result, the source said.

The Bee said the requests, in Montreal, would come from representatives of about 30 countries in the "Supreme Council For Sports."

The request would be "to follow Tanzania's lead and follow the black African countries in pulling out."

The reference to Tanzania meant that country's protest against the New Zealand rugby team's tour of South Africa just after 170 Africans were killed in Soweto race riots.

The Bee said the countries protesting against segregation are "such places as Algeria, Cameroon, Chad, Andorra, People's Republic of Congo, Antigua, Ethiopia and th- Ivory Coast."

Tourney pairings set for August playoffs

Although the Midwest Plains Regional Junior Babe Ruth Tournament is less than four weeks away, the state champions are far from being selected. In fact, most of the state tournaments are still in the planning and waiting stages.

But the first-round pairings for the Midwest Plains event, which will open Aug. 10 at Liberty Park Stadium, have been announced.

The opening round will all be completed the opening day with the following games: North Dakota vs. Colorado, Kansas vs. Missouri, Iowa vs. Minnesota and Nebraska vs. host Sedalia.

The winner of the double-elimination event will move on to the Junior Babe Ruth World Series in Pueblo, Colo.

By Oswald & James Jacoby

Take a look at the North hand only. You are not vulnerable and pass in second seat. Third hand, whose side is vulnerable, opens one heart. Your partner bids two diamonds, dealer three hearts. What should you do?

You are sure that the hand belongs to your opponents. They have a major suit — you have a minor. What do you think they can make?

Four hearts surely, maybe five — possibly six. If you pass or bid just four diamonds they will go about their business cheerily.

Suppose you jump right to five diamonds. This bid is what is called a premature save. You are forcing your opponents to go about blindly in a fog. They can't use Blackwood. They can't make any slam try without actually bidding the slam.

When we watched this hand in a recent rubber-bridge game North made his bid. East studied a long while. He hated to give up game, rubber and 100 honors, but finally made the right decision and doubled.

This way he did get 100 points for setting South. Better than going down one at five hearts, but a far worse result than playing and making four hearts.

Ask the Jacobys

We continue to get questions about the use of the five-club response to a Blackwood four notrump to show either no aces or four.

This variation in Blackwood is standard expert practice and is used by Easley Blackwood himself. The idea is that the Blackwood bidder who has at least one ace will know what the bid means. If he has no aces he should be able to tell that his partner is showing all four.

(Do you have a question for the experts? Write "Ask the Jacobys" care of this newspaper. The Jacobys will answer individual questions if stamped, self-addressed envelopes are enclosed. The most interesting questions will be used in this column and will receive copies of JACOBY MODERN.)

NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Ann Landers

Welfare helps the desperate

Dear Ann: Are you courageous enough to print this? These days everyone is yelling that "welfare cheats" are parasites and responsible for high taxes. Well, I'd like to tell you what it's like for someone who has been on welfare for several years.

My husband was badly wounded during the Korean war, lost his leg and shattered his nervous system. He became an alcoholic. We have a 23-year-old daughter, brain-damaged. I must care for her as if she were an infant. I also have an eight-year-old granddaughter living with me. She has cerebral palsy and a host of other problems — speech defect, bad eyes, poor hearing — been ill all of her life. This child's mother was deserted shortly after she gave birth.

I am in poor health, yet I drive my granddaughter to a special school — a total of 52 miles a day. I also manage to raise my own vegetables, can and freeze them to supplement our diet.

How do I like being on welfare? I hate it. I'd give anything if I could earn my way, but I can't. The medical bills are staggering. When I take out my food stamps in the market I get accusatory looks, as if I am stealing bread from the mouths of "taxpayers."

Of course there are lazy bums who won't work, and A.D.C. mothers who are milking the government, but there are also thousands of people like myself who desperately need help. No one speaks for us. Will you? — Thank God I'm In America

Dear Friend: Yes, I will speak for you — by letting you speak for yourself. Here's your letter, and bless you for writing it.

Dear Ann Landers: The wedding is over but I'm a wreck. Had we foreseen the trouble, we would have given our daughter a ladder. This letter is "therapy." If I put my gripes in writing I might feel better.

The limit was agreed on — 300 people — 150 from each side. We ended up with 225 from our side alone.

As soon as the invitations were in the mail we began to get calls from friends and relatives telling us, "You forgot So-and-So. They are hurt. Invite them right away."

The responses began to trickle in. When we invited "Mr. and Mrs." some replied, "We're bringing our daughter and son-in-law." Or, "Of course you know we can't leave Mother home . . ."

Four days before the wedding we had NOT heard from half the people. I got on the phone. (Ann Landers says you're supposed to call the clods if they don't R.S.V.P.)

I was told, "Of course we'll be there. We figured you'd know." (One card came back, "Sorry we can't make it." No signature.)

At the reception our daughter was in tears. There were 61 children (ALL uninvited) under 16 years of age. The kids took over the dance floor, pestered the band and played in the restrooms. It was a disaster.

Please, Ann, tell your readers kids don't belong at weddings. If parents can't afford a sitter they should all stay home. — Glad I Said It

Dear Glad: So am I. I hope somebody out there listens.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers's booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 50 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Ann Landers' P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Man charged with robbery of K.C. bank

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Arthur Alexander Littlejohn, 25, who gave no permanent address, has been charged with the robbery of more than $52,000 from the United Missouri Bank of Hickman Mills in suburban south metropolitian Kansas City.

Littlejohn was arraigned Tuesday before U.S. Magistrate Calvin K. Hamilton. His bond was set at $100,000 and he was released to the custody of the U.S. marshal's office.

According to information disclosed during the arriagnment, the robber fled the bank Monday with $52,222.92 after he surprised two women employes of the bank.

The women told investigators when they arrived at the bank Monday morning a man, armed with a handgun, met them, ordered them to open the bank and shut off the alarm.

One of the women was forced to open the vault and the man took the cash and escaped.

Littlejohn was picked out of a police lineup by the two women.

Last week Littlejohn pleaded guilty to two counts of an eight-count indictment charging him with embezzlement of the mail and breaking into a postal box. He had been free on $5,000 bond.

Disarmament walkers rally at statehouse

TOPEKA, Kan. (AP) — About 30 persons, including six Buddist monks, who make up the "continential walk for disarmament and social justice" held a rally on the steps of the statehouse in Topeka.

The group is walking from San Francisco to Washington, D.C., in support of a variety of causes including both national and personal disarmament, decent housing, world development, jobs, racial and sexual justice and better health care.

Foes of a plan to construct a nuclear power plant near Burlington, Kan., distributed leaflets in opposition to the plant and spoke against its construction.

Lyle Goltz, assistant state energy officer, presented the state administration's position in favor of constructing the nuclear plant. He also voiced concern over a seeming lack of awareness of critical energy problems.

Following the rally Tuesday, the walkers were to meet Topeka Mayor Bill McCormick, then attended a pot luck dinner in a Topeka park where slides were to be shown of the walk's progress.

St. Louis man shot to death by passing car

OVERLAND, Mo. (AP) — A 20-year-old north St. Louis man was shot to death Tuesday by a gunman in a passing car, Overland police said.

Pierre Hawkins, 20, was at the wheel of a 1974 Cadillac, when a 1967 station wagon pulled alongside. Men armed with handguns fired at least seven shots into the car. One shot struck Hawkins in the back of the head.

Police believe the killing was drug-related.

Two female passengers in the Hawkins car were seriously injured; a male passenger escaped unhurt.

Police said the shooting occurred about 9:50 p.m. Tuesday. Hawkins and his three passengers were on their way to a drive-in theater.

Police were looking for three young men, described as armed and dangerous.

Claude Humphrey now confident

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — "As far as I'm concerned, I'm back," Atlanta Falcons defensive end Claude Humphrey said Tuesday after his first rigorous workout since his knee was injured last year.

"Now I can sleep at night," Humphrey said when his knee withstood a grueling hitting session at the National Football League team's training camp.

Humphrey was injured a preseason game against the New York Jets in 1975.

Unbelievable. Dodge Aspen for $427 less than Ford Granada.

Unbelievable. Dodge Aspen sedan is $427 less than Ford Granada.
Based on a comparison of manufacturers suggested retail prices for base Aspen and Granada four-door sedans. With all its style, quality, comfort, and room, the Aspen comes equipped with a small sticker price.

Aspen got 27 MPG highway. 18 MPG city.
According to official 1976 EPA mileage estimates for an Aspen equipped with a 225 Six and manual transmission. Your actual mileage may differ, depending on how and where you drive, the condition of your car, and its optional equipment.

Aspen has a ride that rivals that of a full-sized car.
One of Dodge's latest engineering accomplishments is Aspen's unique Isolated Transverse Suspension. It is rubber isolated to reduce noise and vibration transmitted to the passenger compartment. And gives Aspen the smooth, quiet ride you usually find in a much bigger car.

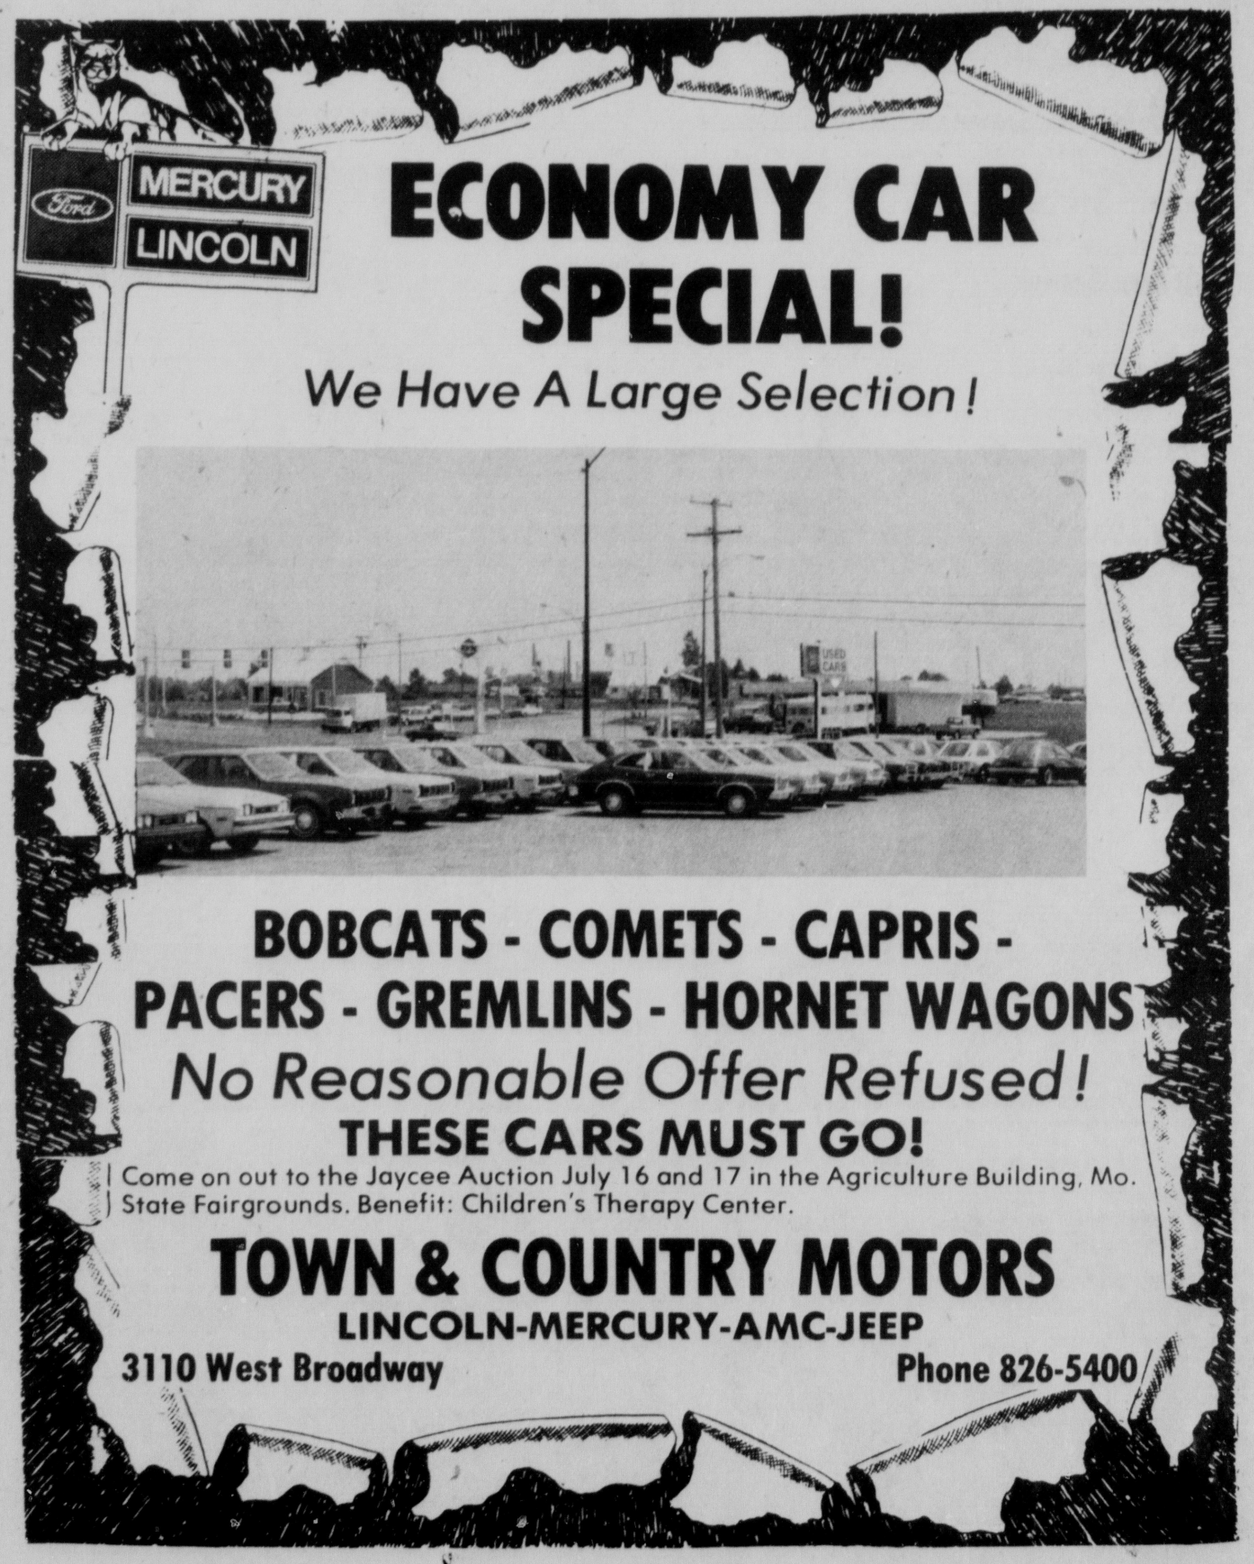

If you have a head for cars, head for Dodge.

More companies turning to public service films

By KAY BARTLETT
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The film is called "America — It's All the Difference." It's not brought to you by those wonderful people in Hollywood. It's brought to you by the J.C. Penney Co.

You might see it if you're a student, a moviegoer, a civic club member or a television watcher. It won't cost you anything, or the theater, TV station, school or club that shows it to you. J.C. Penney pays all the bills.

Not that it's free for Penney's. The giant corporation paid $75,000 to produce the film and will spend more money to distribute it.

There's not a single word about Penney's in it, not a picure of Penney merchandise nor a shot of a Penney store. At the very end, there's simply a credit line: "Presented as a public service by the J.C. Penney Co."

The 28-minute film, narrated by Henry Fonda, is one of thousands produced each year by American industry, which calls them sponsored or industrial films. They cost from a few thousand dollars to the current record holder — a $2 million bicentennial flick about American history.

The Penney film, focusing on immigrants and how their differences shaped America, is what the industry calls a public service film, enhancing a company's image. Such films are a growing trend.

There are other industrial films which promote a product indirectly. Another Penney production, "Footnotes on History," is a comic documentary on the history of shoes that features the latest in shoes. Penney shoes, to be sure.

Some films are still blatantly commercial, but these are the exceptions. Modern Talking Picture Service Inc., the largest distributor of sponsored or industrial films, recently turned one down. The account executive, Gordon Reynolds, advised the client to do some editing and try it as a television commercial.

"We now have the luxury of being able to say no," he says. "But it doesn't happen often. In the last 12 years, there has been a heavier swing toward offering public service films."

Film enterprise

Actor William Shatner prepares for a scene in the five-part public service film series, "American Enterprise," on location at Princeton University. Shatner, known primarily for his role as captain of the Enterprise in the old Star Trek TV series, stars in the $350,000 production backed by Phillips Petroleum, which will spend another $400,000 for distribution. (AP)

Phillips Petroleum, for instance, has financed a five-part film on the free enterprise system with William Shatner of Star Trek fame.

"Ten years ago, Phillips would not have come out with a project like that," Reynolds says.

The film cost $350,000 to produce and $400,000 to distribute it to a hoped-for audience of 12 million by the end of 1977.

Phillips hired men and women from the academic world to tell the story and says it first saw the film in its completed stage.

Why does a company like J.C. Penney or Phillips — or Exxon, Johnson's Wax, General Motors, and many others — want to spend this kind of money for films that don't really push the product?

Good will, in a word, says Harvey McCormack, manager of public information at Penney's.

"It's a thank you to America," he says. "It says something about the kind of company we are...Who knows, maybe they will go to J.C. Penney to shop."

The industrial film is not new. It's been around since World War I but grew dramatically after World War II when the 16 millimeter projector became the greatest teacher in the United States.

Now $123 million annually is spent on such films, including costs of production and distribution. The U.S. government spends an additional $42 million for films made by 45 agencies, with the Defense Department and the U.S. Information Service among the big spenders.

The figures come from Tom Hope Reports, a marketing research firm in Rochester, N.Y., that specializes in keeping tabs on the industry.

Hope says the average film — if there is such a thing — costs about $20,000. One problem in discussing the average film is that they vary in length. If the producer aims for the television market, he produces a 27-or 28-minute film, long enough for a few commercials.

Major networks will not take these films, but the local program director of an NBC affiliate may accept one he feels viewers in that area may enjoy.

If the producer wants to place films in movie theaters as shorts, a 12-to-15-minute film is most desirable. The viewer may or may not be aware he's getting something of a commercial before the feature film he plunked down $3 or $4 to see. Not just movie houses in the boondocks use these films; they are regularly booked into Radio City Music Hall in Rockefeller Center.

A third type is the "news spot." If a company has a newsworthy item coming up—let's say the opening of the first Volkswagen plant in the United States—a quick film may be made and distributed free to local television stations. Viewers then get a little shot of the plant opening, an item that's been in the newspapers.

Don Lane of Don Lane Productions says the best way to figure "average" is to project $2,000 a minute. However, if you ask Francis Thompson, one of the best-known producers in the field, he will tell you $300,000 to $350,000 would be a "good budget" for a 27-or 28-minute film.

The Thompson operation—known for top quality as well as top prices—produced a 48-minute bicentennial film for $2 million for the U.S. government. It shows the history of the last 200 years.

The big industrial spenders include pharmaceutical, oil, utility and auto companies. But the field is not limited.

"Name me a product and I'll give you 12 film sponsors," says Lane, who has been in the business since 1948.

He cites as an example cosmetics manufacturers who have produced films on good grooming, always popular in the home economics class.

Then there are the specialty films. Lane, for example, is an expert on agriculture. He has made films on various cattle diseases and these are shown to audiences of cattle raisers.

Or as Reynolds puts it: "You give us a film made for lefthanded widget makers and we'll find you an audience."

A classic in the industrial film world was "Louisiana Story," made in 1948 and is still popular today. It depicts the discovery of oil in a Louisiana bayou and its effect on a Cajun Indian family.

Standard Oil—now Exxon—paid a quarter of a million dollars to have it produced. It has been seen by millions of people.

Most industrials have shorter lives—a fashion film, for instance, is good for only months. Others last a year, some four or five years.

Often, the films are thematic. Oil companies, for instance, have a best seller in the energy crisis, accounts of just how the oil gets out of the ground, is processed, and makes your car run.

The 500 or so firms producing industrial films tend to be small. And there are awards and prizes for them—Oscars as it were.

The most prestigious is the Cine Golden Eagle. The winners of the Golden Eagle are entered in film contests around the world — some serious, some not so serious.

A new contest is to be held this year in the Virgin Islands.

"That may prove to be a very legitimate one since everyone wants to go to the Virgin Islands," says one industrial film maker.

Thompson, while noting that the awards and contests are good publicity, takes a humorous view.

"I think at one point I was made the ambassador to Graustark," he says.

Variety of summer roles lures acting duo back to Stratford Festival

Passionate purpose

Hume Cronyn, destined for his role as Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," says he has no interest in whether the character is sympathetic or unsympathetic. "My one passionate purpose is to make him understandable," said Cronyn of his role this summer at Ontario's Stratford Festival of Drama.

By WILLIAM GLOVER
AP Drama Writer

STRATFORD, Canada (AP) — Performing together is fine. Finding fresh acting challenge is even better.

Being able to do both, says Hume Cronyn, is why he and wife Jessica Tandy are in strenuous workout this summer at Ontario's renowned Stratford Festival of drama.

The stellar veterans have a total of six roles in four plays and appear together in one.

"We never set out to be a team," he explains, "but it's more pleasant when that can be arranged.

"Also, we get two salaries — which makes it easier for us than many actors to try a wide variety of parts."

Stratford is the sixth major Cronyn-Tandy sortie into regional repertory for the sort of emotive challenge unlikely on commercial Broadway. Other trips have been to Cambridge, Mass.; Minneapolis; Los Angeles; Washington, and Seattle.

"I used to feel Broadway was everything," he says. "I don't feel that way anymore, although it is still the greatest concentration of talent and the most exciting theater in North America.

"But no actor any more can say my life is New York, unless he is prepared to sit doing nothing for months and months."

The 34-year-wed couple's prior excursions, however, have hardly compared in variety to the current role assortment.

Miss Tandy began her stint in that high Restoration comedy of manners, "The Way of the World," and on July 14 debuts in a new Canadian play, "Eve." Based on a novel by Constance Beresford-Howe, the plot concerns a woman who sets off at age 65 to discover who she is.

Come August, Miss Tandy tackles tandem assignment as Hippolyta-Titaniain in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," with spouse Cronyn as Bottom.

What really lured him back to Stratford — Cronyn appeared here without his wife in 1967 in "Hadrian VII" — was the opportunity to enact Shylock in "The Merchant of Venice," a production that has won him high critical priase. The play itself drew mixed opinions, as usual.

"When you play Shylock, you're in for controversy," Cronyn says. "I have no interest in whether the character is sympathetic or unsympathetic and I don't give a damn if some people regard my portrayal as anti-Semitic.

"My one passionate purpose is to make him understandable."

In preparation for the play, he read extensively and decided "opinions are so contrasting that all one can do is find one's own way through the mine fields of precedent."

Miss Tandy had to resolve trepidation of a different sort when Artistic Director Robin Phillips asked her to play Hitania. She last did the fairy queen at age 24, which was 43 years ago.

More aliens were naturalized in 1944 than at any time, the Census Bureau's "Historical Statistics of the United States" reports. During that World War II year, 442,000 people were naturalized, including naturalizations in U.S.-occupied territories, as compared to 8,000 in 1907.

Polanski unveils new scare film

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — This could be a first for a major motion picture: the star of Paramount's new film "The Tenant" doesn't appear in the billing.

It happens that the leading player is Roman Polanski. He is also director of the film and co-author, and that's why he left himself off the cast list: "I think having the name repeated too many times seems like self-indulgence. Acting is not a preoccupation with me. I enjoy it, but it is not something I am compelled to do."

The filmmaker, who now lives "between London and Paris," was here to help launch "The Tenant" and was pleased to learn that the picture had opened to big business in New York.

"That's what matters to me: whether my films are popular," said Polanski. "I make them mainly for audiences. If the critics like them, too, that is also nice. But I don't read reviews. There is little I can learn from them, and I find that the critics are becoming more and more insulting."

Born 42 years ago in Paris, Polanski grew up in Poland where he started as a child actor. He turned film director and won international attention with "Knife in the Water" (Academy nomination, best foreign film, 1962). He made three films in England — "Repulsion," "Cul-de-Sac" and "The Fearless Vampire Killers" ("my most popular film in Europe but ruined by MGM's cutting here"). "Rosemary's Baby" in 1968 established him as a top Hollywood director.

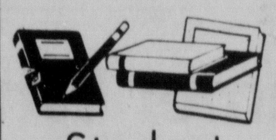

"The Tenant" marks Polanski's return to his scare-film beginnings.

"It has elements of suspense and slight horror, which audiences seem to like," he remarked. Paramount bought the Roland Topor novel four years ago and sugested it to Polanski. "It seemed too close to 'Rosemary's Baby,'" he said.

Last year Polanski was planning "Pirates" — not the Harold Robbins book but a real buccaneer saga. When the film was postponed, he returned to "The Tenant." His producer on "Chinatown," Robert Evans, suggested that Polanski act in it as well. The film was shot in Paris with Isabelle Adjani, Melvyn Douglas, Jo Van Fleet and Shelley Winters.

Polanski was asked if he knew about "Helter Skelter," the CBS-TV film of the Manson murders which drew one of the biggest ratings in TV history. He is the widower of Sharon Tate, one of the victims.

"Yes, I heard about it," he said, "and I think enough money has been made by people, mostly the press, out of a tragedy that devastated many lives. At some point it should stop."
